GERMANY'S CLAIMS OF SUCCESSES DISPUTED IN MOSCOW REPORTS

By the Associated Press

Kiev is tottering under combined air and land assault, Moscow no longer is protected from German panzer thrusts by the Stalin line and Leningrad is caught by a German frontal drive and a Finnish flank offensive, Germans asserted today.

They declared that Red armies were falling apart and that the campaign was rushing to a climax on this, the 23rd day of the eastward push.

Nazi forces were reported hammering at the gates of Kiev, and Berlin waited expectantly to hear that that Gateway to the Ukraine's richest industrial and farming regions had been forced. German planes rained destruction on Kiev's warehouses, and hangars and even destroyed the city's waterworks, it was said.

That was the picture to be pieced together from the words of authorized German spokesmen, DNB, the official news agency, and—in slight degree—from the daily communique from Adolf Hitler's headquarters.

The German fuehrer's headquarters said Finnish troops had opened an attack in Karelia, on both sides of Lake Ladoga, in the sector closest to Leningrad.

"The main strength of the powerful Soviet army is broken," asserted DNB, the official German news agency, reporting also that Nazi blitzkrieg legions had slashed through the main Stalin line defenses "at all decisive points."

Dispatches from Ankara, Turkey, reported that Soviet government officials were preparing to move from Moscow, although the Germans are still some 300 miles from the Red capital, and that the British mission had already transferred to Gorki, 250 miles east.

By contrast, the Russians, after reporting that the 2,000-mile front was aflame with a series of gigantic new battles over the weekend, declared in this morning's communique that no major fighting took place during the night and that there had been no significant changes in the struggle in the last several hours.

In London, authoritative quarters said the Nazi drive toward Leningrad was "the most dangerous," but that Berlin claims of huge gains were regarded as "extravagant."

The German-controlled Holland radio said the fall of Kiev, the Ukraine capital, was "to be expected at any moment."

Jubilantly, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels proclaimed to the German public through press and radio that "there is no salvation for the Soviet armies. . . The decision in the east has already been attained."

As for a separate peace with Russia, the Germans made it clear that there could be no question of compromise. The Reich, it was said, had a "mandate" from all Europe to liquidate Bolshevism.

Nazi military dispatches said that in storming across the strategic Dnepr river, on the central front guarding Moscow, German troops had encountered a powerful Soviet defense sector, 30 miles deep in trenches, redoubts and pillboxes, and further guarded by swamps and meandering streams. German engineers swarmed into the boglands wearing snowshoe-like "swamp walkers" so they would not sink in the muck, it was said, and floated numerous bridges to get troops and tanks across.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in a Bastille Day speech in London, declared:

"We will have no truce or parley with Hitler, or the grisly gang who did Hitler's worst."

In the last few weeks, he said, "we have thrown on Germany about half the tonnage of bombs Germany has thrown on our cities during the whole course of the war, but that is only the beginning."

German military commentators declared Leningrad "in immediate danger" with Nazi troops east of Lake Peipus and less than 150 miles from the city. Reports were heard in Helsinki that the northern Estonina city of Narva, 80 miles from Leningrad, was under German siege.

The Red Army declared a strong new thrust by large motorized and mechanized forces developed Sunday, but was halted and

R. A. F. BOMBERS SCORE HITS ON ENEMY VESSELS

Raids On Nazi-Held Ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre, France, Reported by Authoritative Announcement, to Have Been Destructive

TRAIN MACHINEGUNNED

By the Associated Press

London, July 14—The RAF scored bomb hits on two 6,000-ton ships and shot down seven German fighters in two morning raids on the Nazi-held ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre, France, today, an authoritative announcement said.

The big bombers were escorted by fighting planes as they swept across the channel for the attacks on France after night raids which extended from the coast to industrial northwestern Germany.

The British acknowledged loss of two of their bombers and four fighters in the engagement at Cherbourg. They said that one of the 6,000-ton ships was set on fire, and that bombs also hit a railroad station south of the docks, as well as locomotive sheds and a factory.

The other 6,000-ton ship was hit at Le Havre and afterward was seen to be half submerged, the announcement said.

Later in the morning another formation of Blenheim bombers attacked the railroad yards at Hazebrouck.

Britain Now Hitting Back With Fearful Might Says Minister

London, July 14 — (AP)—Britain, unshaken by ten months of German air blows, has begun hitting back with fearful might and still is only at the beginning of her growing air power, Prime Minister Churchill told thunderously cheering civil defense workers today.

The prime minister delivered virtually the same fighting message twice—first to 6,000 clamoring veterans of the defense of London in a great review in Hyde Park and later to a luncheon of the capital's organized civil defenders.

"It is time the Germans should be made to suffer in their own homeland and cities something of the torments they have twice in our lifetime let loose upon their neighbors and upon the world," the prime minister exclaimed.

"We have now intensified for the past month a systematic, scientific and methodical bombing on a large scale of German cities and industries and other military objectives.

"We believe it to be in our power to keep this process going on a steadily rising tide month after month, year after year until the Nazi regime is either extirpated by us or, better still, torn to pieces by the German people themselves. . . .

"We shall continue a remorseless discharge of high explosive upon Germany."

He declared there can be "no truce or parley with Hitler or the

ENGLAND MUCH STRENGTHENED BY ARMISTICE

By the Associated Press

London, July 14—(AP)—Britain saw herself in a vastly strengthened position in the Middle East today following the signing of an armistice with Gen. Henri Dentz, French high commissioner in Syria and Lebanon.

By the undisclosed terms of the armistice, signed Saturday night at Acre, Palestine, scene of Napoleonic conflict between Britain and France, British sources said they expected to gain a bulwark for protection of the Suez Canal and perhaps greater cooperation from the wavering Turks.

Now in occupation of territory adjacent to Turkey, the British were in position to send military aid in event their non-belligerent ally becomes involved in the war.

Some of the Imperial and Free French troops engaged for the past five weeks in the bitter Syrian conflict, it was pointed out, will be released for duty elsewhere, and the island of Cyprus, which was in an exposed position after the fall of Crete, may now be bolstered by aviation bases on the mainland.

Increased Free French activity against other Vichy-held colonies was forecast in some quarters.

(In Vichy, French sources declared General Dentz had only tentatively initialed the Acre armistice and said his powers extended only to military matters—not poli-

KNOX FINISHES FIRST YEAR AS NAVY SECRETARY

Expresses Hope That Policy Of Aid To Britain Will Not Lead To War, But Says That Would Be Preferable to a "Hitler Peace"

REMOVAL IS URGED

BY EDWARD E. BOMAR

Washington, July 14—(AP)—Secretary Knox, rounding out a year as civilian head of the navy, expressed hope today that the policy of aid to Britain would not lead this country into war, but he added that war would be "infinitely preferable" to a peace "accomplished by a surrender to Hitlerism"

As the cabinet's most outspoken champion of all-out assistance to the British, Knox said in an anniversary interview that "I have been realistic enough to pursue that policy wherever the pursuit of such a policy might lead."

"I hope it will not lead us into war," he continued. "But in my eyes a war of defense against Nazi-ism would be infinitely preferable to a peace accomplished by surrender to Hitlerism and all that would mean to the freedom and independence of the American people."

The Chicago publisher, one of the two Republican members of President Roosevelt's cabinet, chose his words carefully in response to a remark that some persons had come to regard him as leader of a "war party."

"No sane man wants war," he said. "I happen to belong to a school of thinkers who regard as imperative a policy of aiding England at whatever cost to ourselves, to promote both our present security and future national welfare."

He added that he did not believe "a free, independent, democratic

TRAINING PERIOD IS DISCUSSED

President Roosevelt Considers With Democratic and Republican Leaders Controversial Question Of Extending Beyond Year Active Service Of Selectees, Reserve Officers and National Guardsmen

DELIBERATION OVER LEGISLATION DELAYED

BULLETIN

Washington, July 14—(AP)—President Roosevelt and legislative leaders were reported reliably today to have agreed to seek prompt congressional action to retain selectees and members of the National Guard in training beyond their one year's service period.

Washington, July 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt discussed with Democratic and Republican leaders today the controversial question of extending beyond a year the active service of selectees, reserve officers and National Guardsmen and permitting their assignment outside the western hemisphere.

Considerable opposition has developed in Congress to such a proposal recently advanced by General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

In an effort to settle some of the problems involved, the chief executive met this morning with seven Democratic and two Republican members of the Senate and House. Marshall also was present.

The chief executive has suggested that it might be well to extend the service period, particularly of men assigned to outlying posts, such as those in Alaska, Hawaii and in the Atlantic. Administration officials have taken the position that maximum efficiency would not be served if it were necessary continuously to replace portions of troops on duty at distant stations.

Meanwhile, the Senate military committee deferred for a week consideration of legislation which would authorize President Roosevelt to requisition private property for defense purposes.

The committee was scheduled to take up the measure today, but members said a postponement was agreed upon at the request of Senator Chandler (D-Ky.) who was out of the city and unable to attend the meeting.

RATIONING OF MATERIALS IS PROBABLE SOON

Atlantic City, N. J., July 14—(AP)—Leon Henderson asserted bluntly today that "the party is over" as far as the retail sales boom occasioned by defense spending is concerned.

The administrator of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply said in a speech prepared for a meeting of the New York Housewares Manufacturers Association that defense needs would require rationing of the materials which go into manufacturing articles the public has been buying in ever-increasing amounts.

It already has become apparent, he said, that practically no aluminum would be available for civilian use after military needs were met and "it is becoming evident now that the amount of copper, steel, nickel, zinc, chromite, manganese and a number of other materials required for armaments is going to be so great that we won't have enough left over for consumers durable goods."

This, he continued, "means rationing, not by cards at the stores but at the raw materials line, and rationing means that someone is going to get hurt."

Henderson said there was grave danger of inflation and that the office of Price Administration was going to "barge ahead" in the fight against it.

"Before long now," he said,

DEATH OF SOUTHWEST TOWNSHIP MAN FROM A MONTH-OLD BLOW IS BEING INVESTIGATED BY OFFICIALS

William H. Reynolds, Removed to Warren State Hospital for Treatment, Passes Away Soon After Being Admitted Saturday Evening

INJURED DURING FIGHT

The blow of a flatiron, administered during an argument on the night of June 13, was blamed for the death Saturday of William H. Reynolds, 29, of Pineville, Southwest township.

Lewis Jackson, aged about 40, who is alleged to have wielded the flatiron, was arrested at his home in Enterprise early yesterday morning by Sheriff William C. Stuart and is being held in the county jail on an open charge pending an inquest into the death, planned by Coroner Ed C. Lowrey.

Reynolds died at 6:30 p. m. Saturday in the Warren State Hospital, North Warren, an hour and a half after his arrival by ambulance from the Titusville hospital, where he was admitted about 6:30 o'clock that morning.

A post mortem examination conducted at the state hospital revealed that Reynolds had suffered a severe frontal fracture of the skull.

According to information obtained by Coroner Lowrey, Reynolds was struck on the forehead with a flatiron thrown or swung by Jackson at the home of the latter following an altercation in which Reynolds was ordered by Jackson to leave his premises.

Reynolds left the home, the coroner said he was informed, but returned later, after which Jackson is alleged to have called him vile names. It was then that Reynolds was struck across the forehead with the heavy instrument. The incident took place on Friday, June 13.

The injured man did not seek medical attention until the following day. He appeared with his wife at the office of a Titusville physician on Saturday morning, June 14, and said he had been injured in a fight. Neither he nor his wife said anything about a flatiron, but the doctor quoted Reynolds as saying that "three or four" men had come after him and that they were "too much" for him.

Reynolds had a deep cut on his forehead about 2½ inches long

Wool Products Must Be Properly Labeled

Washington, July 14—(AP)—Beginning today, all wool products must bear labels setting forth the percentage of wool each contains and whether it is reprocessed or reused wool.

Nine months ago President Roosevelt signed legislation fixing the labeling requirements, and between that time and the effective date, today, merchants were expected either to sell all of their unlabeled merchandise or to label it to conform with the law.

EXPELLED NAZI OFFICIALS MISS JAPANESE BOAT

Top-Ranking Germans In San Francisco Refuse to Board Nyk Liner With Their Staffs and Families and Change Minds Too Late

FEARS APPREHENSION

San Francisco, July 14—(AP)—A Japanese liner with a polite but determined captain ploughed westward today without Fritz Wiedemann and Dr. Hans Borchers, expelled German consul generals who missed the boat on purpose, then spent 12 hectic hours trying to catch it.

The two top-ranking Nazis refused to board the Nyk liner Yawata Maru with their staffs and families yesterday, fearing that without a British guarantee of safe conduct across the Pacific they would be risking seizure at sea.

Two hours or so after the Yawata Maru sailed, word came from the British embassy in Washington that the Nazis would not be molested enroute.

Wiedemann then tried frantically to have the ship stopped. He radioed the captain asking that the Yawata turn about and come back for them at the German government's expense.

"Please express our greatest regrets we are unable to accept request to return."

This didn't stop Wiedemann, the San Francisco consul-general who was once Adolf Hitler's commanding officer. He telephoned the

DISPUTES INVOLVE MILLIONS

Assembly Spends Weekend Turning Clock Back To Remain On "Saturday", Quitting At Dawn Sunday for few Hours' Sleep, Returning In Middle Afternoon and Recessing Again To Reconvene For Early Morning Session

DEADLOCK CONTINUES ON REAPPORTIONMENT

Harrisburg, July 14—(AP)—Two subjects—unemployment compensation and congressional reapportionment—today held up final adjournment of the Pennsylvania legislautre which, after a long and weary weekend, still was pretending this was Saturday.

Both topics were tied up in conference committees created because the House and Senate failed to agree—a common occurrence ing the six months long session which bids fair to break more records in the state's annals.

At stake were these issues:

1. Possible conversion of the state's unemployment compensation system into federal hands, in the words of Senator Weldon B. Heyburn (R-Del), who also said it might be necessary to call a special session if an act was not passed.

2. The alternative of electing Pennsylvania's congressional delegation at large in 1942 which would mean that all 33 candidates would be on a state-wide ballot if re-apportionment remains unsettled.

Other controveries of the fading session dropped into the background as the Republican Senate and the Democratic House continued at loggerheads over these major subjects.

As a result, a resolution to adjourn the session finally at 11:45 p. m. (EST) Saturday, adopted by the House, became somewhat ironical as the meditations of both branches continued except for a few occasional "recesses."

The legislature spent the weekend turning the clock back to remain on "Saturday," quitting at dawn Sunday for a few hours sleep, returning in the middle of the afternoon and recessing again until midnight largely because some members protested sitting on the Sabbath.

A series of respites enabled overworked printers to catch up with a multitude of conference committee reports, but by that time the disagreement over compensation and reapportionment dictated another recess until noon today.

A few efforts were made in the House and in the Senate to declare another legislative day, but they failed. Sennator John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland) offered a resolution to that effect and it was sent to committee.

The compensation issue, as put by Senator Heyburn, who served

The contingent is part of the extra personnel coming to the Gap to swell the 28th to its full wartime strength of 18,000 or more. It is over 14,000 at present.

The trainees, who have completed the 13-week basic course which the National Guard regiments here have undergone, will be distributed among infantry and artillery regiments.

Captain Henry L. Peterson of Chester was assigned to command the train of infantry troops. Second Lieut. Everett Francis of Richmond, Va., was detailed as train quartermaster and First Lieut. Harry Brown of Glenmore, medical officer.

A thousand troops from Bradford, Ridgway and Kane will have a "junket" home next week end to take part in the national convention of the society of the 28th division, AEF, at Bradford. FORMER WARREN TEACHER NAMED HOFF MANAGER

Rosetta C. Turner, at one time a member of the faculty at the Hoff Business College and prior to that a school teacher in the county, returned here today to assume the management of the business institution, according to I. J. Hoff, its proprietor.

Miss Turner has in recent years been signally successful in the conduct of two different business colleges in the state under her own ownership: The DuBois Business College and, later, the New Kensington Business College, from which she retired some months ago.

Assumption of the post as manager of the Hoff Business College marks a happy return to the local school. For a number of years previous to establishment of her own schools, Miss Turner was head of the stenographic and secretarial department of the local college. Previous to this, she had been prominent in public schools of Warren county, after which she completed special business training courses and taught in another commercial school before coming to Hoff's.

Miss Turner has gained wide note in business college circles in the eastern United States, due to her progressive methods and efficient management. She, likewise, has gained a high reputation as one of the leading business women in her field, and has been most active in the professional, civic and church life of her communities.

She succeeds the late L. J. Holmes, who was partner and manager of the school from 1905 until January, 1941.

Her return to Warren will be welcomed by a host of friends.

Mr. McCurdy is a former pastor of Grace church.

The nuptials took place at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the lovely garden of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hanson, Warren-Kinzua road, uncle and aunt of the bride, and the reception which followed was held there.

Margaret McCutcheon, of Warren, was maid of honor and the bridegroom, son of George McCurdy, of Jackson Center, was attended by his brother, Byron, of the same town.

The bride wore an old fashioned frock of white dotted swiss, with square neckline and hooped skirt and her colonial bouquet was of white roses and baby's breath. Miss McCutcheon wore pink mousseline de soie, in a style similar to the bridal gown, and carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

For the reception, garden flowers appointed a pretty table and two aunts of the bride, Miss Minnie Hanson and Mrs. Ralph Hanson, presided. Guests were from Frewsburg, N. Y., Cleveland, O., Brookville, and Jackson Center.

TYRONE POWER AND LINDA DARNELL IN "BLOOD AND SAND" AT LIBRARY THEATRE

When "Blood and Sand" first appeared in the United States it was greeted with the universal acclaim. Today it is even more popular—due to the power and vitality with which Vicente Blasco Ibanez wrote.

If there was ever a writer who knew Spain and the dynamic passions that surged through Spanish life, that writer was Ibanez. In "Blood and Sand" he presents that life—flaming tempestuous, fierce and magnificent while it lasted. His is a story of the world's most fearless, reckless, romantic men who live by facing death daily in the blood and sand of the arena.

In making a picture of the famous Ibanez novel, 20th Century-Fox's Production Chief, Darryl F. Zanuck went all out. He cast Tyrone Power in the starring role, assembled a cast of stars headed by Linda Darnell and Rita Hayworth, and had "Blood and Sand" photographed in flaming Technicolor. Little wonder then that the picture, opening today and Tuesday at the Library Theatre, has been acclaimed as a smash hit.

Jimmy Stewart Is a Corporal Now But He Doesn't Fly Yet!

Jimmy Stewart, who left Hollywood stardom to enter the army air corps as a private, apologized for being late with his letter about army life, written on request of the Special News Service. He's been so busy with things people keep telling him to do, he said, he just couldn't get around to it any sooner. Then he couldn't find anybody to "type it out," so he had to do it in longhand, and spelling never was one of his fortes. (His writing and spelling are O. K.—Ed.).

By Corporal Jimmy Stewart

Moffett Field, Calif., July 12—(The Special News Service)—Well, everything is going along fine.

I've been looking over some of the things I've written down during the last month or so; you know—those things that happen that I don't want to forget, and I notice that I have written down several times about Private Simpson's shoes. Well, Private Simpson got his new shoes O. K. Now I realize that will take some explaining.

Private Simpson and I landed in the air corps here at Moffett Field about the same time and about a week after we got here we were sent down to be issued uniforms. Well, I was in line right behind Private Simpson and when we came to get our shoes the sergeant there in the supply room asked Private Simpson what size shoe he wore and Private Simpson said he wore size 15, four A. Well, there was a sort of hush came over the supply room and then everybody, all together, looked down. And there they were! I guess no one had noticed Private Simpson's feet before because everyone had been pretty busy. But there they were.

Now, about that shoe size. You understand the 15 is the length and the four A is the width. Now, put those two together and you have quite a shoe. Well, the sergeant there in the supply room turned sort of white and said, "Just wait here a minute" and went away and came back with a lieutenant and pointed down and said, "There they are, sir."

The lieutenant was very calm about the whole thing and wrote down the size on the form sheet and told Private Simpson that the shoes would be constructed and that he would receive them sometime in the future.

Private Simpson wasn't sensitive about the size of his shoes at all and no one kidded him about it, either—which is understandable. After all, when you see the Grand Canyon or Niagara Falls, you don't laugh; you're impressed.

Well, the shoes were a pretty long time coming, but one day Private Simpson came up to me with a grin on his face and said that a communique had come through stating that the shoes had been seen somewhere in the east and would arrive out here within a week. And, sure enough, several mornings later, down the company street came the shoes, with Private Simpson in them, as proud as proud could be. So Private Simpson got his new shoes O. K.

A great many new Selective Service men have come to this post during the last month or so, and everybody has been pretty busy. Now that so many men are coming in we have to sweat out pretty long chow lines—in other words, you have to wait in a long line before you eat. I like that "sweat out" expression they use in the army. You don't wait for anybody in the army—you "sweat him out."

They have made me a drill instructor up here. Whenever a lot of men come in, each of the instructors takes a group and starts them out on the fundamentals of drill. I shouldn't have any trouble projecting my voice after the practice I'm getting up here. You really have to "speak up" out on the drill field, when you're giving commands especially when you are competing against a strong wind right in your face and 50 or 60 airplanes flying around about you.

Speaking of airplanes, I have been tremendously impressed by the training these flying cadets are getting here at Moffett Field. Although I'm not on flying status in the air corps (I'm still hoping that I'll be able to fly later), I have learned a lot about the flight training by talking to some of the cadets and by reading about it.

This is the second stage of their training, called the basic stage. The cadets come here from primary schools, where they have learned previous flying in small, low horsepower training planes. The plane they fly as basic is a much heavier plane, with lots of power and lots of the characteristics of the high speed, high horsepower equipment they will fly in advanced training, which is the stage after basic.

I was wondering the other day if all the mothers and fathers all over the country who have boys who are cadet material realize how good this training is. The American air-cooled engine, used in all army training planes, is the finest, most reliable in the world. The American training plane is the strongest, safest in the world. I don't mean to bite the hand that used to feed me, but I don't think the movies that have been made about the air corps have done it justice, or even come close.

If a boy becomes a cadet, it doesn't mean that every day he goes out and defies death in a flying machine. There aren't any more unanswered problems in army flying. The army has worked out a precise, safe, effective way to fly, and in learning to fly the army way the cadet gets training you can't beat anywhere, and as he learns to fly the army way, things slip into his character which will never leave him; things like alertness and positiveness and self-assurance and courage.

I've talked to a lot of these cadets up here and they're all pretty keen about their job. And, believe me, it's a man-size job. There's no Rover Boy stuff in army flying.

Well, I guess I sort of got wound up about the cadets, but I'll tell you it's a kick to see how this army training works and gets results. Just as it's a kick to see the pride that a master airplane mechanic and his crew have in the airplane they maintain on the ground. That airplane is their baby. Their responsibility is to keep the plane in absolutely perfect condition, and they nurse it along like it was a human. In other words, I think it's quite a kick to be around people who are enthusiastic about what they are doing, and they certainly are in the air corps.

Well, as I said, everything's going along fine.

MASTERS PAIRS WILL TOP NATIONAL TOURNEY LIST

By WM. E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Banner event of the national championships tournament at Asbury Park, N. J., the week of August 4, will be the Masters Pairs. When this annual contest was inaugurated nearly a decade ago, only a handful of players in the country were eligible to compete.

Today so many players have won their spurs, and so eager are all players to gain the distinction of having entered the Masters Pairs, that the event may have to be arbitrarily restricted in size.

The schedule allows for four sessions of the Masters Pairs. The plan has always been to avoid eliminations, each pair playing throughout and meeting every other pair. The natural top limit under this plan is 64 pairs. The prospective entry for the contest in August is well over this figure. It may be necessary to close entry after the first 64 applications have been received.

The hands played in the Masters Pairs are of interest to the whole bridge world. Many of them are discussed years afterward. Today's hand was one of the "heart-breakers" from the 1940 tournament.

At many tables North and South got to five spades, "saving" against the vulnerable heart game. With only one ace and one king in the two hands, they nevertheless were able to make five spades through the freak patterns, plus a lucky break in diamonds.

When West gained the lead with the ace of diamonds, he led his trump, but even this defense could not defeat the contract. North still had four trumps with which to run three hearts and one diamond. The one diamond ruff was sufficient to establish the ten.

VACATIONS

With a greater number of people employed than has been the case in many years it naturally follows that more people than ordinary are enjoying vacations this summer.

Many of these people perhaps do not know how to get the best benefits out of their vacations, and a good percentage, it may be depended upon, will come home all worn out after the so-called period of rest, less able to do good work than when they started.

People should not jump too suddenly from the sedentary habits of routine lives into the exhausting stunts of a strenuous vacation. The man whose usual exercise is merely twisting in a swivel chair is likely to get lame muscles if he runs bases at the ball game as he used to when a kid.

Also the young lady who can't walk half a mile at home without getting out the family car, is likely to become exhausted if she tries to climb a 5,000 foot mountain.

An active vacation is a wonderful thing, but indoor workers who try to perform stunts that would tire out a farmer or a freight handler, need a little preliminary training.

Plan your vacation sensibly and you'll come back rested!

WHEN THE NAZIS WERE LATE

The Nazis don't always move first, according to H. A. Peterson, Australian trade commissioner at Batavia, Java. According to Peterson, they moved second in the Netherlands East Indies, and landed in concentration camps.

A plot of local Germans, hundreds of them well-armed and equipped, had been formed. On word that Hitler had invaded the Low Countries, they were to seize Batavia and Surabaya. But word of the invasion came first to the Dutch authorities, by code cable from Holland. They moved first, swooped down on the plotting Germans, seized their stores of guns and ammunition, and clapped them all into concentration camps.

Hitler moved first in Poland, Norway, Denmark, Holland—the list is too long to recount—but it is pleasant to record that there is at least one place where they got the jump on him.

THOSE NEGATIVE ICELANDERS

The Parliament of Iceland (the oldest in the world, having existed continuously for 100 years) voted 39 to 3 to approve the co-operation of American forces with British to prevent seizure of the island by the Nazis.

Three Icelanders voted in the negative. They were Communists.

That's odd, since the official Communist line, now that Russia has been invaded, is "Everything to beat Hitler." Now you might have assumed that to prevent Hitler from seizing Iceland was helping to beat him. But not to these Icelandic Comrades. How come?

The only way we can explain it is that Iceland is remote, and that telephone and telegraph connections with the Kremlin are not all the Comrades might desire. So there they were, caught hanging to last week's line instead of this week's.

STRANGLING CULTURE

What the "new order" in Europe means to the conquered: In Czechoslovakia, all Czech schools will be closed at the end of this year, the buildings confiscated. The universities, now completely German-dominated, allowed Czech students to return this year if they met certain requirements, but not 1 per cent ever returned. The Prague City Library was temporarily closed, then reopened. But of its 15,000 books, 10,000 had been removed from the shelves by the censors in the interim. The Sokol cultural and athletic societies have been completely dissolved.

It is thus that the Germans elect to usher in "the new day"—with darkness.

The Warren airport experienced one of its busiest days Sunday. As a matter of fact activities of the fliers continued until well into the night.

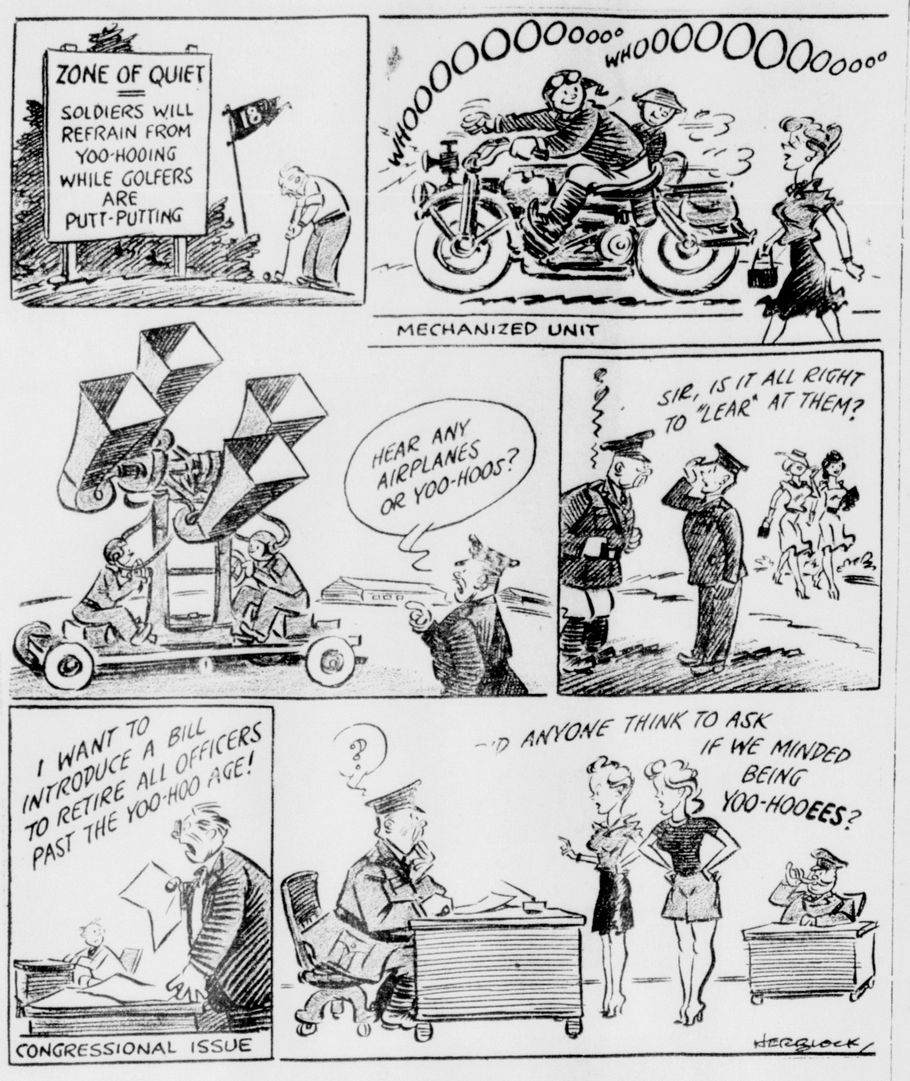

The news from the Russian front is just about the same as it was last week—both sides claiming success.

The Great Yoo-Hoo Issue

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, July 14—To read the newspapers of the city of Washington you might get the idea that the most important function of Congress was to govern the District of Columbia. More space is devoted to the goings-on before the District committees of Congress than almost every other subject. This is perhaps excusable, for Washington is after all home to the "cliff dwellers," the people who were born here or who don't work for the government.

Why Congress should have to bother with all these purely local affairs is something you'll have to refer back to the founding fathers and the Congress of 1878, who figured out this complex system of non-local government. So large do these problems of local government loom in the congressional scheme of things that every Monday in the House is designated as District Day. That day the representatives corrugate their brows over problems that would be settled by a body no more august than a town council in any city of equal size. For sheer cumbersomeness, this gives Washington not only the most unwieldly, but also the most expensive top government in the country—500 senators and representatives at $10,000 a year each—worrying at times about such things as traffic regulation and local tax rates.

Currently, the big worry is over the police problem. There are only six police forces in Washington now.

There is the Secret Service, the Federal Bureau of Investigation of super-snooper G-men under J. Edgar Hoover, which has its headquarters in Washington but doesn't bother with local crimes.

There is the National Park police force under Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, which policee the great open spaces, and the Capitol police force of congressional patronge appointees, which stays around the halls of Congress to keep the tourists from taking the Capitol apart for souvenirs. There is the Public Buildings Administration force, which guards the buildings the Capitol police don't, and finally, the District police force of more than 1400 men.

This list leaves out the postal inspectors, the internal revenue agents, the border patrol, the customs inspectors, the T-men of the Treasury's narcotics and secret service counterfeiting divisions, the Marine Corps, the military police and the Army and Navy intelligence sections, but even without these you would think that Washington should be the best policed city in the world. On the contrary, it is sad to relate that your country's capital has a police scandal as juicy as anything ever turned up.

It's the District police force that all the shouting is about, particularly the detective force and the homicide squad which have had 79 violent death cases to deal with since June 1, including six murders culminating in the horrible attack on government worker Jessie Elizabeth Streiff a few weeks ago.

A sub-committee of House District Committee is now conducting an investigation in the congressional hearing fashion with the net result that the superintendent of District police, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, will probably be retired and the detective bureau will be upheaved.

Testimony before the investigating committee, including admissions by the police officers themselves, revealed a police organization as faulty as ever existed. The seven men on the homicide squad, one lieutenant and six sergeants, have regularly been called off their

Pan-American Unity Symbolized by Stamp

SYMBOLIC of Good Neighborliness and the attitude of most South American republics toward American democracy is this 1939 Paraguay issue, displaying the flag and eagle of the United States along with the Paraguayan standard.

Although physical battle has been kept from the shores of South America, with a few notable exceptions, the war of propaganda has been carried on intensively by the Nazis virtually from the day of Hitler's ascension to power. Aware of this Fascist infiltration into the Western Hemisphere, the United States has been pursuing a policy of counter-propaganda.

Paraguayan territory was first explored by Sebastian Cabot in 1526 and 10 years later a fort was built on the site of what is now Ascuncion, the capital.

Spanish rule was overthrown in 1811. For a number of years, a policy of isolation was followed, but Paraguay eventually became involved in a catastrophic war with Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay which ended in 1870 with large losses for Paraguay.

Until recently, revolutions frequently flared and disturbed the smooth path of progress.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

VAST RUSSIA

Germany's invasion of Russia brings to mind many questions about this vast land that has been for many years much of a mystery, and in the past two war years the enigma of Europe. Set your sights on Moscow for the answers.

1. What were the principal resource objectives of Germany's attack on Russia
2. What previous man of conquest marched to Moscow, but was soon driven out of Russia?
3. How many times as large as the United States is the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and how far is it from Leningrad to Vladivostok?
4. What office in the U. S. S. R. does Joseph Stalin hold?
5. What three names has the city of Leningrad held, and after whom was it named?

Answers on Page 6

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Answering the mail orders:

F. T. D., Carson City, Nev.—The principal reason that the U. S. had no definite advance information on the German declaration of war against Russia is that the state department and most other people reasoned, on the basis of their information, that Joseph Stalin would not fight. There were a few observers who predicted the Nazi-Communist war and The Associated Press carried a story from Ankara that forecast hostilities, but even those brave souls opined it would be sometime in the future—not the present. It was felt that any open conflict, no matter what its outcome, would mean the end of Stalin's regime in Russia—therefore, he would not permit the situation to come to shooting warfare, even if he had to make great concessions.

I. T., Nashville, Tenn.—Secretary of State Hull, though not seriously ill, is not in the best of health. During periods when he is indisposed, the reins of the state department are nearly always handed over completely to Under-secretary Sumner Welles. That is probably why you have seen Welles more often in the news recently than Hull.

A. F. A., Miami Beach, Fla.—The "economic warfare" machinery has not been set up simply because of a behind-the-scenes scrap over what department shall handle it. The leading contestants now are Jesse Jones (as Secretary of Commerce) and Cordell Hull (as Secretary of State). Jones contends that it is primarily a matter of commerce and economics and therefore belongs in his department. Hull contends that any action whatever by the proposed commission would so affect our foreign policy that it would be silly to place it anywhere else than under the watchful eye of the state department.

G. L., Houston, Tex.—Men selected for the army air corps must have been citizens of the United States for at least 10 years.

R. S., West Chester, Pa.—I take it all back. Lt. Col. Harold N. Gilbert is the man credited with originating the phrase, "Keep 'Em Flying." Colonel Gilbert is in the adjutant general's office and we did know, as I reported, that the phrase came from that general direction. However, a number of army officials did claim to remember that it was used in the World War, that it originated in England, that it came from the naval aviation training center at Pensacola, Fla. There seems now to be no doubt of it. Colonel Gilbert had the idea and was the first to try to promote it. His superiors took it up and gave it an official boost. There is one fly in the ointment. The phrase does not seem to be sweeping the country. Like a popular song, it may take hold at any time, or it may lie around for years virtually unnoticed and then overnight become as common in conversational stock as "So long," "What's doing?" "Thumbs up," or "I'll be seeing you."

Mrs. L. S. T., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—According to Rep. Herbert Bonner of North Carolina, who should know, there is about 1¼ cents worth of tobacco (farm price) in a 15-cent package of cigarets. The rest is processing, manufacturing, wrapping, advertising, state and federal taxes, and commissions.

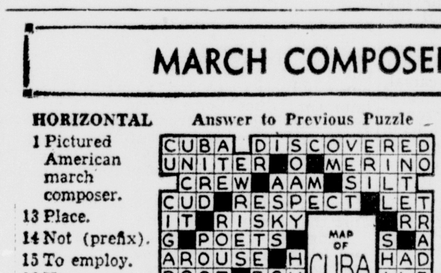

K. B., Columbia, Mo.—Junior and senior medical students may apply for membership in the Medical Administrative Corps Reserve. After completing their studies, they then will be appointed medical officers in the regular medical corps reserve. The dean of your medical school will handle your application for you. Acceptance in the MACR will relieve you of being called immediately for selective service—unless, of course, you flunk out of medical school.

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

by WATKINS E. WRIGHT

YESTERDAY: Apparently, Luella Pell thinks, the New York venture of the Henry Pells is just not working out. For Henry is, he fears, neglecting his good real estate job in an attempt to get into radio, and she is sure he is neglecting her for Marie Mason, the radio singer from their home town who has taken such an interest in Henry's career. But Luella does not know what she can do, and does nothing.

Chapter 16

Tip From The Boss

MARIE MASON had been right when she said she felt that there were going to be some definite developments before long regarding the radio program. Maybe it was woman's intuition, and maybe it was just "plain old garden-variety hunch," as Henry had expressed it; but whatever it was, Rector got in touch with Marie the next week.

"We're going to have a very important conference," Rector said. "We're planning to get things in shape for a sort of dress rehearsal."

"Oh, that's marvelous!" Marie exclaimed. "I'm delighted Mallum."

"We'll want to use some of Bill's songs, a comedy sketch of Emma Latham's, and perhaps some other material," Rector continued. "Anyway, I'd like for you to get in touch with Pell, and tell him we're going to gather at my office tomorrow evening."

"Of course!" said Marie. "I'll telephone him at once. But when is the rehearsal?"

"We'll discuss that at the conference."

"And how about an audience, Malcolm? After all, we ought to get the reaction of someone besides ourselves."

"Yes, I know," Rector said. "We'll handle all that later. Don't worry."

And Marie hadn't worried. Nor did she lost any time in getting in touch with Henry. She got him at his office, while he was having a visit from the manager of the realty concern.

"And I think, Henry dear," she said, when she had explained about the conference and the rehearsal, that we should do some rehearsing ourselves. I mean, the songs. We want to be perfect if we have to do them before an audience."

"Fine!" Henry said. "Thanks a lot for calling me about it all, Marie. . . ."

"Why not come up to my place this evening? Marie suggested. The sooner we get started, the better."

"Right. I'll be there Eight-thirty all right with you?"

"Splendid. I'll be looking for you."

Henry hung up the receiver, and turned to see the manager's gaze upon him. It was a gaze that made him feel uncomfortable.

"Sorry we were interrupted, Mr. Smithers," he said. "But it was about a little side-line I'm interested in."

"Yes, I know," said Mr. Smithers. "I understand that you're becoming—er—more or less involved with—"

"I beg your pardon," Henry cut in, on the defensive.

"—with radio songs, or something of the sort," Mr. Smithers finished.

"Yes, sir, that's right," Henry said, smiling. "I wrote some verses of my own home, and they may be sung over the air."

"I see." Mr. Smithers turned to go. "We like our employees to have hobbies, Pell," he said as he reached the office door and turned. "But we prefer them to work at them after hours. You can understand that, I'm sure."

"Yes, sir," said Henry, feeling like a small boy, and hating himself for feeling that way. "But my songs hardly come under the heading of hobbies. I hope to make some money out of them, and—"

"Very commendable, I'm sure," Mr. Smithers said coldly. "But the money we are paying you is for your time while in your office. Please keep that in mind. And don't forget about that property in Chicago. We may have to send out someone to handle it for us."

"Very well," said Henry, this time leaving off the "Sir."

He frowned at the door which closed behind Mr. Smithers' stiff and dignified back. "Old crab!" he said under his breath. But he went to work with a sort of grim determination—as though he wanted to show the Old Crab that Henry Pell could earn what he was being paid, and still make something on the side.

Disappointment

HE WENT up to Marie's apartment, as she had suggested. It was but a sort of prologue to many other trips there—for Marie insisted they must rehearse alone until they were letter perfect. They did, and they were! And now everything was all set.

Once more Henry Pell was on his way home from the realty office, and he was trying not to feel too elated. He had some news to speak to Luella, and he wanted to tell it calmly. He didn't want a scene. There had been far too many of them of late; and they hurt a fellow down. Luella, desperately silent, depressingly on the verge of tears, hurt, forlorn. It was awful. It did no one any good, and everyone a lot of harm. Well, after tonight—

He hurried up the two flights of stairs. He opened the door of the apartment and went in.

"Luella?" he called. "Are you home?"

"Yes," Luella replied from the kitchenette, remembering with a little ache in her heart how Henry used to barge in, calling out, "Hi, there, where's my Woman?" Evidently she wasn't his woman any longer. Maybe he thought her a millstone about his neck, or something like that. "I'm mixing your favorite salad, darling," she added.

"Thanks," Henry said. "But I've got to eat in a hurry. I haven't much time."

"Are you going to work again tonight?" Luella asked. She came into the living-room, wearing an apron, and stirring the contents of a salad bowl with a large wooden spoon. "I was hoping we could do something together tonight. It's been days since we—"

"I've got to get into my evening things," Henry interrupted. "We are going—"

"Your evening things!"

"Yes. And for heaven's sake, Luella, don't look so horrified! I'm not going out philandering, if that's what you're thinking about."

"Well, what are you going to do?"

"We're having a rehearsal of the radio program tonight," Henry said. "It's being given before an invited audience in one of the radio broadcasting studios, just as though it was actually on the air, only—"

"Isn't it terribly sudden — the idea of a rehearsal?"

"In a way, yes," said Henry. "Although we've been planning for it for several days. That's why I've had to work so hard—on the songs, I mean. But today Rector telephoned and said there were some big shots here from Hollywood—men who know radio values, so far as the entertainment angle is concerned, and so he wants to put on a show for them tonight."

"But why the formal attire?"

"We want to be impressive"—Henry grinned—"elegant, you know, and all that."

"I see. Then that means I'll have to wear my most formal gown."

"No, Luella. I—I—that is, you're not going."

"Oh!"

"I'm sorry, but—"

"I thought you said there was to be an invited audience."

"I did." Henry took a deep breath. "The rehearsal is being put on before about fifty people, but only those interested in entertainment values. Some Broadway producers, the men from Hollywood, and some men who are interested in a business way. We want to get the reaction of people like that. Understand?"

Luella nodded. "Yes," she said. Just that and nothing more.

Henry saw her stricken look and felt a pang of sympathy mingled with one of annoyance.

"Don't stand there looking like a hurt child, honey," he said. "Wait until the program actually goes on the air, and then I'll take you to a broadcast."

Luella Has A Plan

"THAT'LL be terribly sweet of you, I'm sure," said Luella. "And don't forget to buy me a lollipop."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Treat a child as a child—that's what I mean," said Luella. "I have ceased to be a woman in your opinion." She turned and went back to the kitchenette.

But she had lost interest in preparing Henry's favorite salad.

In fact she had lost interest in just about everything. She was low. She was resentful. She was angry. Henry was going to a rehearsal, and he was getting into his formal clothes. That probably meant that Marie would be all dolled up like Mrs. Astor's horse. It probably meant that there was going to be a gay evening for Henry—if not for his wife.

It was right at that moment that a voice spoke to Luella; a voice that might have come from another Luella.

It said: "Listen, you, why don't you give that husband something to think about?"

"What?" asked Luella. "What, for instance?"

"Tommy McIntyre, and the Planetarium," said the voice, with emphasis.

"Oh, but I couldn't do that. . . . I—"

"Nonsense! . . . Maybe if that husband of yours knew that Tommy McIntyre had poured out his love for you while the two of you stood beneath a lot of make-believe stars and planets and things, he would stop thinking about himself all the time."

"Maybe so, but I—I—"

"Listen, Luella Brown Pell, are you in love with Tommy—or on the verge of falling?"

"Of course not! . . . The very idea!"

"Then stop stalling. If your conscience is clear, that's all that matters. You should march right in there and tell that husband of yours all about it—tell him anything. It'll do him good—the self-centered, radio-songwriting Son of a Gun!"

Leulla stared at the salad bowl. She picked up the big wooden spoon and began to use is savagely, not gently as the recipe had said. Yes, Tommy—a lot of stars in a manufactured heaven — and talk of love.

"I've felt myself being drawn to you ever since that first night." Tommy had said. "I thought at first it was because you were understanding, and because it was comforting to have someone to talk to about Marie. But now I no longer want to talk about Marie. I want to talk about us, Luella."

Heaven alone knew what else Tommy would have said if the lecturer hadn't begun explaining a lot of planets.

How Nature Helps Reds on Stalin Line

Nature, as usual, is on the side of the defender in the Russo-German conflict as Nazis hurl new attacks at the Stalin Line, but even her aid has not halted Hitler's mechanized forces in the past. Map shows how Russia builds her great line, using rivers and difficult terrain as natural defenses.

Around New York

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—P. G. Wodehouse did himself no good with some people by his broadcast from Berlin. After a year in an internment camp, during which he wrote two novels and expressed himself as feeling fine, the noted British humorist announced that he had been unable to work up any real hatred of the Nazis.

At once caustic comment began to appear in print and in the manuscripts of the commentators. His friends, rallying to his defense, scoff at the "appeaser" charge, saying he is far too good a businessman to endanger his wide American sales through pro-Nazi talk at this time. Wodehouse is one of the world's highest paid writers. Once he took $185,000 out of Hollywood for not writing a line. He just went out on contract, sat around until the contract was up, collected his wages, and came back to New York. His comments on Hollywood at that time did not endear him to the picture front offices.

ONE notes another trend in the war's progress with the influx of Russian jokes, which probably could be called new, as most jokes are, but which really are the same old puns dolled in new clothing and playing a return date.

The most familiar of these is about the shill in front of a waterfront bar who enticed pedestrians with cries of "come on in—meet the Russian princess."

After the unwary pedestrian had sat around for awhile, sipping a drink, he said to the waiter, "But where is the princess?"

"Oh, don't worry about that," the waiter soothed him. "After a couple more of these drinks you'll be able to see the whole royal family."

Another is the tale of the moody Russian who stared gloomily into his vodka for an hour or more. With each drink he became moodier, and finally he growled to the barkeep, "I'm sick of this confounded, no good country. I'm going back to America."

"Where do you think you are?" demanded the barkeep.

"Omisk," yelled the Russian.

"Scram," urged the waiter, grabbing the disconsolate Muscovite by the seat of the britches. "You're in Twenty-Third Street."

THIS next item doesn't concern Russians, though it is about long hair, and maybe that's what suggested it. Anyway, people walking in Sixth avenue or coming out of the Music Hall are regaled by a sign in a barber shop nearby which flaunts this legend:

"We cater to so many celebrities nowadays that our haircuts no longer look human." By "celebrities" could they mean long haired actors?

MANHATTAN has a chain of new pineapple juice stands. . . . They're the traditional fronts with half coconut shells set in plaster. . . . What makes them so noticeable are the sharp cries coming from behind the coolers. . . . "Step up and get yours," is the invitation. Every soda-jerker in every stand yells the same thing, which leads one to suspect that the sales manager has been giving the boys a pep talk. These stands never close. They do a nice business in the heat of the day, but I rarely see anyone patronizing them after midnight.

Death Of Southwest Township Man Being Investigated

which required six stitches to close. The Titusville physician said the injured man had lost considerable blood and that the wound was bandaged when he entered the office, but showed no signs of having received medical treatment.

Five days later, on June 19, Reynolds and his wife returned to the physician's office to have the stitches removed. It was then that Mrs. Reynolds informed the doctor her husband had been struck with a flatiron.

Reynolds apparently suffered no immediate ill effects from his injury other than a number of severe headaches of which he complained. He continued his work for the Hurley-Newson Electric Company, of Erie, on the Pleasantville school building.

Last Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds attended a Titusville theatre and soon after their return home Mr. Reynolds become seriously ill and violent. About 2 a. m. members of the family telephoned a Pleasantville physician and said they needed a sleeping potion for the distressed man.

Reynolds became increasingly violent and the family and neighbors who had been called in decided to take him to the Titusville hospital. When they arrived at the institution, Reynolds was completely delirious and threshed around so violently that he thrust his head through the rear window of the automobile.

In the hospital emergency room, he was treated for a three-inch gash on his forehead, inflicted by the broken glass, which required 14 stitches to close. He was given a stiff hypodermic to subdue him and was strapped to a cot.

Steps were immediately taken by hospital officials to secure commitment papers for the Warren State Hospital and when they were obtained, Reynolds was brought to North Warren, still strapped to a cot.

Coroner Lowrey, who was called after the man's death, said he would conduct an inquest later this week. A jury was impanelled and after the body was viewed, adjournment was taken until a later date.

Members of the jury are Arthur Barr, Claude Cochran, Richard Jones, Harold Baker, Richard Forbes and Bruce Trussler.

Reynolds was born in Franklin, June 1, 1912. He was married May 16, 1938, to Miss Martha Mae Orcutt, of Butler, and besides the widow he leaves a son, Donald M. Reynolds, aged two years. He also leaves his mother, Mrs. Elsie Maginne Ashbaugh, and the following half-sisters and half-brothers: Mrs. Alice Reninger, Miss Cella Ashbaugh and Miss Delores Ashbaugh, of R. D. 3, Titusville; Mrs. Lucille Gaglaradi and Irvin Ashbaugh, of Buffalo, and Miss Dorothy Mae Ashbaugh, of R. D. 3, Pleasantville.

Removal was made to the Arnold Funeral Home in Titusville, where services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Tuesday, with the Rev. Ivan Hunsberger, of the Pleasantville U. B. church, officiating. Interment will be in the Stone church cemetery near Emlenton.

They were Eleanor Schell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Schell, who was at Chautauqua Lake, and Arthur Rockwell, son of Mrs. Bertha Gamble, who lives in Washington.

There were also three visitors: Mrs. May Cole, of North East; Mrs. Martha Thayer, of Corry; Naomi Ferris, of Erie. The oldest one present was Mrs. Bertha Gamble and the youngest, the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schell, just seven weeks old.

Dinner was served on tables under the shade trees, followed by an interesting program and election of the following officers: Floyd Scheli, president; Alton Schell, vice president; Madelyn Schell, secretary-treasurer. There have been two marriages and two births since the last reunion: Leland Schell, of Russell, and Evelyn Lundmark were married April 13, 1941 and Fred Anderson, of Frewsburg, N. Y., and Ruth Haller, of Russell, were married June 28, 1941; a son, Jackie, was born January 10, 1941 to Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Schell, and a daughter, Beverly Ann, was born in May, this year, to Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Schell.

The following program was then given: Recitation, Nancy Ann Johnson; talk, Rev. Carlson; duet, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Holt; talk, Glen Carlson. The historian reported four marriages and two births in the past year. A rising vote of thanks was given Amil Carlson and family and the meeting closed with the group singing "God Be With You 'Till We Meet Again".

GRANDSTAND PLAYER

HOSPITAL NINE SHADES LUDLOW BY 5-4 MARGIN

The State Hospital resumed its winning ways Saturday in defeating the Ludlow Wildcats for the second time this season, by a 5 to 4 count in ten innings on the North Warren diamond.

The invaders forced the struggle all the way, holding a 3 to 0 lead from the third inning until the seventh, when the Hospital finally dashed in on a few bingles.

The Wildcats scored a run in the eighth to regain the lead, but North Warren tied the game again in their half of that canto.

Then in the tenth inning, Jim Rose, who had pitched a pretty fair ball game, came up to win it all by himself with a long home run out beyond left field.

The Hospital was without the services of Harold Brown, "Chuck" Clawson, and Pilot "Rabbit" Swanson, all in Cleveland over the week-end, where the first two were given trials with the Indians.

Next Saturday afternoon the North Warren crew will play host to their staunchest rivals, the Gowanda, N. Y., State Hospital nine The game will start at 2:30 p. m.

SPORT SCATTERINGS

LET'S HAVE THAT PIONEER-FORGE SERIES

All this season fans have been asking this desk and Business Manager Jimmy Kannen, of the NFO baseball club, why Mike Cannavino's Meadville Pioneers aren't booked for a series with the Irvine outfit. Jimmy has spent most of the Forge profits on postage to communicate with Cannavino, and Mike hasn't even come through with an answer. The latest, and last, letter that Cannavino is going to get, according to Jimmy, is reprinted below, in which Jimmy explains to his baseball public just why the Pioneers haven't engaged the Forgers up to now.

Dear Mike:

The fans in Irvine, Youngsville, and Warren used to ask me "Why don't you book Cannavino's team from Meadville?" I was very patient and told them that we were trying to book you. Which you know is true—(If you don't—just count the number of letters I have sent you this summer). Lately, however, they don't ask why we don't book you—now they're asking why won't you give us a game and the answer to their minds is that you are afraid we'll trim you.

There's a rumor here that you are giving a bonus of $25.00 to any team that beats you. If this is true you are interested in getting a good baseball game—or could it be that you are simply putting the pressure on your team) We don't know—but if you want good games why don't you book us? If you are putting pressure on your team then naturally you aren't interested in GOOD competition and all you have to do is to say "No" and we'll lay off.

Mike—I use two fingers to type letters and I'm getting d - - n tired of wearing them out writing you letters and asking for an exchange of games. This will be the last time I'll approach you for a game and I surely would appreciate an answer to let me know if you're still alive so that come next Decoration Day I'll know whether to send a letter to you or flowers for your sod.

We're not interested in your $25.00 bonus. All we want is a home and home series of games.

We'll trade you August 17 at Irvine for Labor Day (Sept. 1) at Meadville and if you can't call that a good exchange for you, I'll eat my hat. Now—all I want is your answer "Yes," or "No."

Yours,
Jim Kannen,
National Forge Baseball Club.

Now, the above challenge may not sound to be in the best of moods—nor should it. Cannavino has been finding every way possible to step around a series with the Forge this season, and he'd better answer this letter or it's going to cause quite a rumpus. So, now, Mike, what do you say? You're not giving up your life, just possibly a couple of ball games. Of course, your team is good when your competition is mediocre, but sign for a Forge series and you'll get a few real games of baseball on that ledger.

Zivic, Barbara Go Tonight In Philly

Philadelphia, July 14—(AP)—Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh's welterweight champion, is confident of turning the tables on Johnny Barbara, of Chicago, when they clash tonight in a 12-round non-title bout at the Philadelphia Gardens.

Making his first ring appearance since he battered Al "Bummy" Davis to defeat in New York recently, Zivic intends to wipe out the sting of two setbacks at the hands of Barbara.

Looking ahead to a title defense against Red Cochrane in Newark on July 28, Zivic is sure he will "stop Barbara in six or seven rounds." Zivic is a 2 to 1 favorite.

On the other hand Barbara declares the Pittsburgh battler "can't fight a man who crowds and roughs him. He may beat the greatest fighters, but he can't beat me. I'll take him again.

Chink Collins Wins County Golf Title

Chink Collins won the county golf championship at Maplehurst yesterday with low gross of a field of thirty golfers over thirty six holes of 156.

Elliott Smith, who slipped into the tournament though being a resident of Jamestown, N. Y., was permitted to play and finished second. Dr. Graves, one of Warren's best amateur golfers, came in third. The scores of these two were 160 and 162 respectively.

Other winners of the remaining bogey tourneys and special prizes will be announced tomorrow by the committee which put over the most successful Warren County Golf Tourney in years.

Steve Kovach Wins State Amateur Toga

Philadelphia, July 14—(AP)—Steve Kovach, new state amateur golf champion, is ready to turn professional.

All he's awaiting for is the "right offer."

The little 146-pound Pittsburgh steel worker won the state crown Saturday, after five years of trying, by beating Bill Hyndman, of Philadelphia, 3 and 2, in the final round of the three-day match play tourney.

Kovach explained "I've had several offers to turn pro since I won the Western Pennsylvania Open. If the right one comes along, I'll do it."

General Hugh A. Drum of the United States army did not attend West Point.

MARCONI CLUB 11-10 WINNERS OVER MAYVILLE

The Marconi Club entry in the Interstate Baseball League won their second game yesterday at Mayville defeating their hosts by a close 11 to 10 score.

"Stretch" Campbell's flawless relief hurling brought the Marconis their victory after Floyd Kifer got in bad shape along about the fifth inning.

Tony Notoro hit a double for the winners, one of the two extra base hits in the game.

The contest was originally a home game for Warren. But Russell Field could not be fixed good enough on which to play, and so the Marconis are playing their home games all away from this city.

Bronx Bombers Trim Chisox Twice; Cubs Slow Down Brooklyn

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

For the benefit of those folks who think baseballs second name is DiMaggio—and vice versa—this is as good a time as any to point out that pitchers really still are of some use in the game beside helping to keep up a club's intake average at mealtime.

Of course, none of 'em look any good when Jolting Joe is waving his war club at them these days. Ted Lyons and Lefty Thornton Lee of the Chicago White Sox are the latest to join Joe's personal "serve-it-up-and-duck" department. The big guy connected safely off each of them yesterday, as the sizzling Yankees swept a twin bill, to run his all-time record for hitting to 53 consecutive games.

But Sunday was by far the best day for twirlers the big leagues have seen this season.

Three tossers served shutouts, three more gave up only one run. Eleven of the twirling jobs were six-hitters or less, with Southpaw Ken Heintzelman of the Pirates and old Rufus the Red Ruffing, the Yankee key man who turned in his seventh straight win, pace-making the parade.

The Yanks, riding a 14-game winning streak, were five full games in front of the American League pack, while the Dodgers' National League lead was narrowed down to 2½ games over the St. Louis Cardinals, largely because of Claude Passeau.

Claude, who labors for the Chicago Cubs threw a neat six-hitter at the Brooklyns in the opener of a twin bill, and, what with the backing of a 16-hit attack, took a 10-3 victory. In the afterpiece, young Newt Kimball, starting his first encounter for the year, clouted the Cubs with a six-hitter for a 3-1 victory.

The Cards flailed the Phillies twice. Lon Warneke's eight-hitter produced a 7-2 win in the opener, while Bill Crouch came up with a sparkling four-inning relief job to save an 8-5 decision in the second act.

Rufus the Red went to work in the nightcap for the Yanks, had a no-hitter going into the eighth inning and wound up with a 1-0 three-hit win in 11 innings for his tenth victory of the year. In the opener, Spud Chandler pitched five-hit ball to win his first victory of the campaign, 8-1.

Heintzelman hurled two-hit ball, allowing only one man to get as far as second and tossed the Pirates to a 4-0 picnic. This boosted the Bucs' winning streak to seven straight, but it ended right there as Bill Terry's terriers came back to take the nightcap, 8-2, behind Hal Schumacher's five-hit hurling. Just for the Records, Frankie Frisch still had Arky Vaughan holding down the bench.

Also missing was Ted Williams, from the Boston Red Sox lineup. He hurt his ankle Saturday and his absence yesterday was about as unimportant as your right arm. The Sed Sox run-making machinery had monkey wrenches in it and they lost to Cleveland, 2-1, in 11 innings after going down 9-6 in nine.

Opposing batsmen couldn't solve the Riddle from Cincinnati and unbeaten Elmer posted his tenth straight win by blanking the Boston Braves with five hits for a 4-0 Red victory. Manny Salvo and Tom Earley combined on a nine-hitter to beat Paul Derringer, 6-5 in the second game.

Even old Jack Knott, who sits down to table with the Philadelphia Athletics these days, was in the parade. Turning in his fourth win in the past five starts, he downed the Detroit Tigers, 5-4, with five hits, despite two homers by Pinky Higgins.

Washington walloped St. Louis, 6-3 and 6-5, as a quartet of Nat pitchers allowed only 13 hits through the 18 innings.

VIC GHEZZI IS P. G. A. WINNER; BEATS NELSON

BY LOUDON KELLY

Denver, July 14—(AP)—It was only a 30-inch putt and it wobbled into the cup like any duffer's effort, but to 6 foot 3 inch Vic Ghezzi it was worth $500 and his first Professional Golfers' Association title.

The handsome Deal, N. J., veteran won the championship and the $1,100 top prize after nine years' trying in a 38-hole epic with defending champion Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, at Cherry Hills yesterday.

And the missed shot that cost the Texas-bred Nelson the last chance at his second straight crown and the difference between first money and $600 he won was a putt of the same 2½-foot length.

This was the picture of the second extra-hole of the playoff.

Both players, worn from physical and nervous strain, failed to reach the carpet of the 400-yard hole with their seconds. First Ghezzi chipped on, then Nelson, both expertly close.

They flipped a coin for first putt and Nelson won. He putted first and went by at the right. Then Ghezzi went in by the right side.

Ghezzi never before had won a championship of this importance. He showed the fighting heart of a true champion in coming from behind. Nelson was three up at the 27-hole station and it looked as though nothing would stop him.

Ghezzi equalled par for the 38 holes. Nelson was one over par.

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Spud Chandler and Red Ruffing, Yankees—Chandler pitched five-hitter and Ruffing three-hitter for twin win over White Sox.

Elmer Riddle, Reds, and Max West, Braves—Riddle's five-hit hurling blanked Bees, 4-0, in opener; West's ninth-inning double drove home two runs to win nightcap, 6-5.

Bob Johnson, Athletics—Hit two singles and drove in two runs in 5-4 win over Tigers.

Ken Heintzelman, Pirates, and Hal Schumacher and Dick Bartett, Giants — Heintzelman's two-hit pitching won opener, 4-0; Schumacher allowed five hits and Bartell clouted homer, double and two singles, driving in four runs, in 8-2 nightcap victory.

BUSINESS BOOMS

Pittsburgh, July 14—(AP)—Rising from early month doldrums, business in the Pittsburgh district soared to new peaks during June, the University of Pittsburgh reported. The bureau's monthly index rose to 145.5 per cent of the 1923-25 average, slightly exceeding the best previous month, December, 1940. The bureau said seasonal adjustments arising from the summer lull will tend to check the rise in the index from now until late in the year.

Knox Finishes First Year As Navy Secretary

(From Page One)

United States of America could long survive in a Nazi-dominated world."

Just a year ago the senate after sharp debate confirmed the nominations of Frank Knox to be navy secretary and Henry L. Stimson to be secretary of war. Knox, the bluff, ruddy 1936 Republican nominee for vice president, met with stronger opposition than Stimson, who had been President Hoover's secretary of state and President Taft's secretary of war.

Chicago, July 14—(AP)—A resolution adopted by 118 representatives of ten America First committee chapters urged that Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox be removed from office because of his recommendation that the navy be used to "clear the Atlantic of the German menace."

This, the resolution said, was in disregard of constitutional provisions that congress has the sole power to declare war.

"there will be more purchasing power running around hunting something to buy than there are goods available. If that occurs to substantial degree, no power on earth can prevent inflation.

"For that reason the government must sop up some of this extra purchasing power, and it can do so in many healthy ways. It must increase taxes, thus helping to pay for defense. It can stimulate savings—thus providing a back-log for the future when first attention is not being given to merchandise of death. Consumer credit must be kept from expanding."

Fred Fisher was born in Sandusky, O., in 1878.

Once, he was credited with having told a friend:

"I'm going to have $50,000 when I'm 50 years old, and I'm going to retire."

His fortune, when he was 50, was estimated at $50,000,000. He was still at work.

DEDICATION OF I. O. O. F. SHRINE ATTRACTS MANY

Between forty and fifty Warren Odd Fellows, Rebekahs and their families were in Meadville Saturday to attend the dedication of a memorial shrine at the I. O. O. F. Orphans' Home, which attracted a crowd estimated at between 8,000 and 10,000 people.

The address of the afternoon was given by Grand Sire James O. Hagerman, while State Senator Jacob W. Carr, of Butler, representing Governor James, delivered the dedicatory address.

The program also included selections by the chorus of the home music by the home band and other features. In the evening there was a public initiatory ceremonial and a drill by a Rebekah drill team.

Training Period Discussed

is a modified form of requisition legislation originally sought by the War Department, it was expected to kick up considerable controversy on the senate floor and Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, said Republicans generally would oppose it.

Under it the government would be empowered to requisition private property needed specifically for defense purposes.

The fight over property requisitioning appeared likely to develop as a Senate prelude to the two-part issue now confronting Congress over the use and duration of service of the 900,000 National Guardsmen and selective service trainees in the army.

Reynolds said he would ask the military committee to begin hearings Wednesday on legislation advocated by General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, to permit holding the men in service beyond the one year for which they were called and to remove restrictions preventing their use outside the western hemisphere or American possessions.

General Marshall recently advised congressional leaders, it was learned, that unless selectees are held in the army more than a year, outlying defense bases cannot be adequately manned. Citing Hawaii, he was quoted as having said large number of troops would have to be brought back from there in August because of the approaching expiration of their year's service.

Such transfers of men and the dispatch of troops to replace them, he declared, would require the maintenance of a sort of shuttle service between the continental United States and offshore bases.

Opponents of the bill were as outspoken as its advocates, however, and McNary said it would encounter strong minority opposition. He predicted that if it finally passed the provision to permit sending the men outside the western hemisphere would first be eliminated.

Talk of compromise centered chiefly upon the point of service duration and included some discussion of incentives such as special pay by which selectees would be encouraged to remain in uniform for an additional year or two without being required by law to do so.

Japanese embassy in Tokyo and the NYK line's main office there, and the Yawata was flashed to a halt some 90 miles at sea, awaiting developments.

Wiedemann then sought transportation to the Yawata. Without success he attempted to hire a seaplane or boat. He asked the coast guard for a cutter, and the navy for a destroyer. But he was told that neither branch could give him an answer until it was decided whether the Yawata would turn about.

Then, near midnight, the German embassy in Washington informed the consulate here that the Yawata Maru "is too far out and no possibility of her turning back."

The Germans decided to sail July 31 aboard the Japanese liner Tatuta Maru.

Germany's Claims Of Successes Disputed In Moscow Reports

in some places repelled with severe losses in the vicinity of Pskov, 150 miles southwest of Leningrad.

The Germans reported Vitebsk captured and a gap torn in the central Stalin defense line through which panzer divisions were said to be pushing toward Moscow, less than 300 miles away.

The Russians acknowledged German forces had crossed the Dnepr river on the central front, but said the Red army recaptured Rogachev, on the eastern bank, and Zhlobin, on the western bank, 35 miles southeast of Bobruisk.

The Kiev front the Moscow war bulletin said only: "In the southwestern direction our troops continued operations against enemy motorized and mechanized units, resisting their advance eastward."

The Russians declared that the Red air fleet still was fighting a free-for-all war with the luftwaffe, and that Germany was hard hit, by the loss of 2,300 planes, 1,000,000 men killed, wounded or captured, and 3,000 tanks destroyed. Russian losses of a quarter-million men in casualties and missing, 1,900 planes and 2,200 tanks were acknowledged.

Both Moscow and London acclaimed the new Soviet-British pact against Germany. It provided that each country should give the other assistance in the war against the Reich and that neither should negotiate or sign a separate peace.

Britain regarded her entire position in the Middle East as strengthened by the armistice signed Saturday night with Gen. Henri Dentz, French high commissioner and commander of the French armies in Syria and Lebanon.

French sources at Vichy, which refused to have anything to do with armistice negotiations and left Gen. Dentz on his own, said they understood he only initialed the terms and intimated Vichy still might not recognize provisions of the agreement.

British bombers smashed again overnight at northwestern Germany in raids far across new trenches and defense works the British said the Germans had built along the French coast facing England despite steady poundings by the RAF. Scattered German raids were reported from East Anglia and the Midlands.

In the Far East, a fresh "war of nerves" appeared to be cropping up.

Dispatches from Shanghai said Japan had closed the port of Kobe to foreigners for a 10-day period amid what seemed to be a Japanese propaganda campaign to create the impression that a Japanese attack against Russian Siberia was imminent.

Kobe, it was pointed out, might be used as a point of embarkation against Siberia, although most of the shipping out of Kobe goes to China or farther south.

Reports spread by Japanese military and naval quarters in Shanghai said the attack would be launched the day Moscow falls, or perhaps on Aug. 15.

If European Russia collapses under German invasion blows, these reports said, Japan might risk tackling the powerful Red armies in Siberia, estimated at 39 divisions or approximately 585,000 troops.

Foreign military observers in Shanghai, however, still held to the belief that Japan's next move would be southward into French Indo-China, now the target of a Japanese press tirade.

Disputes Involve Millions

on a committee investigating the subject for months, boiled down to this:

The federal government, said Heyburn, demands that the state amend its law to allow recovery from the general fund of any monies "improperly spent" in the past. If this amendment falls, the senator said, the state will be "out of conformity" and the federal government takes over "complete" control of the state unemployment compensation division.

The reapportionment situation changed somewhat after what Senator George Wade (R-Cumberland) called a "complete deadlock" in the dawn hours. Democratic members offered several counter proposals which indicated a willingness, members of the conference committee said, to arrive at a compromise.

Until now, Democrats had insisted on combining Berks and Lehigh in one district, Bucks and Montgomery in another, to reduce the state's districts from 34 to 33 as required by the results of the 1940 census.

Another dispute arose on civil service which was handled by the same conference committee that took up the compensation subject. The House insisted on inserting in the bill, which would combine all merit rating plans under one commission, a provision denying the governor the right to fire "for the good of the service."

The Senate demanded the executive have this authority. After the report was agreed upon by the committee giving the governor that right, House leaders said they would seek to override the committee recommendation, but nothing was done immediately.

Otherwise, the assembly reached a general accord on the few subjects of controversy remaining from this session which is past century in this state.

R. A. F. Bombers Score Hits On Enemy Vessels

Nazi daylight raiders also struck across the channel. Three soldiers were reported wounded when a German plane machinegunned a train in southern England early this morning.

First reports of the daylight sweep said two German planes were shot down as the RAF roared eastward.

In the nigth raids, docks at Amsterdam and Ostend were reported raided and targets as distant as Bremen and Vegesack hit.

Weather again was reported unfavorable to night raiding, but the British said they scored hits which started fires among the oil storage tanks of Rotterdam.

The shipping and shipbuilding center of Bremen and Vegesack were among the RAF's targets in Germany, a communique reported.

One British plane was reported missing in night sweeps over German-occupied northern France.

The government acknowledged the Nazi raiders had bombed a town in the Midlands, another in East Angelia and various places along the coast, but said damage was comparatively light and casualties few. Two of the raiders were reported downed.

FLOOR LEADER GELTZ COLLAPSES AT CAUCUS

Harrisburg, July 14.—(AP)—The Senate's majority floor-leader, James A. Geltz (R-Allegheny) collapsed from exhaustion and nervousness during a party caucus session this morning but fellow senators said he hoped to be on hand when the Senate resumes its meeting at 2 p. m. (EST).

Sen. Leroy E. Chapman (R-Warren) said Geltz's condition was not serious and that he had been taken to his hotel room and advised to remain in bed today for a rest. He had been working for the last week practically without sleep, as the legislature hastened toward final adjournment.

REAPPORTIONING BILL TO AFFECT WARREN COUNTY

In a conference lasting well past dawn, Democrats in the state legislature today submitted two counter-proposals to Republican suggestions for reducing the state's congressional representation from 34 to 33, one of them affecting Warren county, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg. This legislation is one of the major items delaying adjournment of the 1941 General Assembly.

The Democrats' proposal—first made by them since the conference committee was formed several weeks ago—would do this:

1. Place Dauphin in the so-called "shoe-string" district now comprising Huntingdon, Mifflin, Juniata, Snyder, Perry, Union, Bedford and Fulton; place Lebanon with Lancaster and Chester, and Cumberland with Adams, York and Franklin. (Dauphin, Lebanon and Cumberland represented by a Republican now comprise the 19th district.)

2. Combine the 20th and 29th districts, both represented by Republicans, which would place Erie, Crawford, Mercer, Venango, Forest, Clarion, Elk and Warren in one district.

Republicans, meanwhile, submitted their eighth proposal—to place Lackawanna in the so-called "horseshoe" district of Bradford, Wayne, Montour, Wyoming, Susquehanna, Pike, Sullivan and Columbia counties. Lackawanna is now Democratic, the "horseshoe" Republican.

Failure to re-apportion the state would mean the election of all representatives on a state-wide basis.

"If we fail on this bill, we have betrayed our state and our constituents," Senator LeRoy Chapman, of Warren, told the Senate at midnight, shortly before the committee began its all-night session.

"I am utterly opposed to allowing this legislation to go by the board and I will not cast a vote for adjournment sine die until some action is secured if we have to stay here all summer," he added.

Chapman was one of several senators who joined in protest against dropping legislation to cut the state's congressional representation from 34 to 33 as required by the 1940 census.

His statement followed an announcement by Senator George Wade, of Cumberland county, that Senate Republicans had virtually given up hope that a redistricting bill could be passed.

FIRST OBJECTOR GROUP ARRIVES IN NEAR FUTURE

The new $35,000 camp for conscientious objectors to war in the Allegheny National Forest at Red Bridge, nine miles north of Kane, is reported ready for the first contingent of 20 men, expected to arrive this week from a similar camp near Lagro, Ind.

Camp officials said the first campers would be Pennsylvanians now enrolled at the Indiana camp. A group of 100 more is expected July 26.

Regulations at the camp will conform to those followed in other states, it was pointed out. The Red Bridge camp is the first to be established in Pennsylvania.

Campers will be restricted to the grounds for the first six weeks with visiting permitted on Sunday afternoon. After the orientation period, a pass arrangement will be effective during the men's free time.

Enrollees will work a 44-hour week without pay under the U. S. Forest Service on projects left unfinished when the former veterans' CCC camp was abandoned. Projects include a $50,000 improvement to Kennedy Park on route 219 near Bradford, tree planting, road construction and maintenance jobs.

The camp consists of five barracks, each with facilities for housing 40 men, a mess hall with a capacity of 200, recreation building, a garage which can be converted into a theatre and administration and utility buildings.

Officials said half of the men will be members of the Church of the Brethren, which is co-sponsor of the camp with the federal government. Other camps will represent the Friends and the Mennonite churches.

Affiliated churches will pay $35 a month toward the keep of each man. In the case of the campers not affiliated with a church, the three named will contribute a third each to the man's expenses.

Two Major Subjects Tie Up Adjournment of Legislature

GERMANY'S CLAIMS OF SUCCESSES DISPUTED IN MOSCOW REPORTS

By the Associated Press

Kiev is tottering under combined air and land assault, Moscow no longer is protected from German panzer thrusts by the Stalin line and Leningrad is caught by a German frontal drive and a Finnish flank offensive, Germans asserted today.

They declared that Red armies were falling apart and that the campaign was rushing to a climax on this, the 23rd day of the eastward push.

Nazi forces were reported hammering at the gates of Kiev, and Berlin waited expectantly to hear that that Gateway to the Ukraine's richest industrial and farming regions had been forced. German planes rained destruction on Kiev's warehouses, and hangars and even destroyed the city's waterworks, it was said.

That was the picture to be pieced together from the words of authorized German spokesmen, DNB, the official news agency, and—in slight degree—from the daily communique from Adolf Hitler's headquarters.

The German fuehrer's headquarters said Finnish troops had opened an attack in Karelia, on both sides of Lake Ladoga, in the sector closest to Leningrad.

"The main strength of the powerful Soviet army is broken," asserted DNB, the official German news agency, reporting also that Nazi blitzkrieg legions had slashed through the main Stalin line defenses "at all decisive points."

Dispatches from Ankara, Turkey, reported that Soviet government officials were preparing to move from Moscow, although the Germans are still some 300 miles from the Red capital, and that the British mission had already transferred to Gorki, 250 miles east.

By contrast, the Russians, after reporting that the 2,000-mile front was aflame with a series of gigantic new battles over the weekend, declared in this morning's communique that no major fighting took place during the night and that there had been no significant changes in the struggle in the last several hours.

In London, authoritative quarters said the Nazi drive toward Leningrad was "the most dangerous," but that Berlin claims of huge gains were regarded as "extravagant."

The German-controlled Holland radio said the fall of Kiev, the Ukraine capital, was "to be expected at any moment."

Jubilantly, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels proclaimed to the German public through press and radio that "there is no salvation for the Soviet armies. . . The decision in the east has already been attained."

As for a separate peace with Russia, the Germans made it clear that there could be no question of compromise. The Reich, it was said, had a "mandate" from all Europe to liquidate Bolshevism.

Nazi military dispatches said that in storming across the strategic Dnepr river, on the central front guarding Moscow, German troops had encountered a powerful Soviet defense sector, 30 miles deep in trenches, redoubts and pillboxes, and further guarded by swamps and meandering streams. German engineers swarmed into the boglands wearing snowshoe-like "swamp walkers" so they would not sink in the muck, it was said, and floated numerous bridges to get troops and tanks across.

Prime Minister Winston Churchill, in a Bastille Day speech in London, declared:

"We will have no truce or parley with Hitler, or the grisly gang who did Hitler's worst."

In the last few weeks, he said, "we have thrown on Germany about half the tonnage of bombs Germany has thrown on our cities during the whole course of the war, but that is only the beginning."

German military commentators declared Leningrad "in immediate danger" with Nazi troops east of Lake Peipus and less than 150 miles from the city. Reports were heard in Helsinki that the northern Estonina city of Narva, 80 miles from Leningrad, was under German siege.

The Red Army declared a strong new thrust by large motorized and mechanized forces developed Sunday, but was halted and

R. A. F. BOMBERS SCORE HITS ON ENEMY VESSELS

Raids On Nazi-Held Ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre, France, Reported by Authoritative Announcement, to Have Been Destructive

TRAIN MACHINEGUNNED

By the Associated Press

London, July 14—The RAF scored bomb hits on two 6,000-ton ships and shot down seven German fighters in two morning raids on the Nazi-held ports of Cherbourg and Le Havre, France, today, an authoritative announcement said.

The big bombers were escorted by fighting planes as they swept across the channel for the attacks on France after night raids which extended from the coast to industrial northwestern Germany.

The British acknowledged loss of two of their bombers and four fighters in the engagement at Cherbourg. They said that one of the 6,000-ton ships was set on fire, and that bombs also hit a railroad station south of the docks, as well as locomotive sheds and a factory.

The other 6,000-ton ship was hit at Le Havre and afterward was seen to be half submerged, the announcement said.

Later in the morning another formation of Blenheim bombers attacked the railroad yards at Hazebrouck.

Britain Now Hitting Back With Fearful Might Says Minister

London, July 14 — (AP)—Britain, unshaken by ten months of German air blows, has begun hitting back with fearful might and still is only at the beginning of her growing air power, Prime Minister Churchill told thunderously cheering civil defense workers today.

The prime minister delivered virtually the same fighting message twice—first to 6,000 clamoring veterans of the defense of London in a great review in Hyde Park and later to a luncheon of the capital's organized civil defenders.

"It is time the Germans should be made to suffer in their own homeland and cities something of the torments they have twice in our lifetime let loose upon their neighbors and upon the world," the prime minister exclaimed.

"We have now intensified for the past month a systematic, scientific and methodical bombing on a large scale of German cities and industries and other military objectives.

"We believe it to be in our power to keep this process going on a steadily rising tide month after month, year after year until the Nazi regime is either extirpated by us or, better still, torn to pieces by the German people themselves. . . .

"We shall continue a remorseless discharge of high explosive upon Germany."

He declared there can be "no truce or parley with Hitler or the

ENGLAND MUCH STRENGTHENED BY ARMISTICE

By the Associated Press

London, July 14—(AP)—Britain saw herself in a vastly strengthened position in the Middle East today following the signing of an armistice with Gen. Henri Dentz, French high commissioner in Syria and Lebanon.

By the undisclosed terms of the armistice, signed Saturday night at Acre, Palestine, scene of Napoleonic conflict between Britain and France, British sources said they expected to gain a bulwark for protection of the Suez Canal and perhaps greater cooperation from the wavering Turks.

Now in occupation of territory adjacent to Turkey, the British were in position to send military aid in event their non-belligerent ally becomes involved in the war.

Some of the Imperial and Free French troops engaged for the past five weeks in the bitter Syrian conflict, it was pointed out, will be released for duty elsewhere, and the island of Cyprus, which was in an exposed position after the fall of Crete, may now be bolstered by aviation bases on the mainland.

Increased Free French activity against other Vichy-held colonies was forecast in some quarters.

(In Vichy, French sources declared General Dentz had only tentatively initialed the Acre armistice and said his powers extended only to military matters—not poli-

KNOX FINISHES FIRST YEAR AS NAVY SECRETARY

Expresses Hope That Policy Of Aid To Britain Will Not Lead To War, But Says That Would Be Preferable to a "Hitler Peace"

REMOVAL IS URGED

BY EDWARD E. BOMAR

Washington, July 14—(AP)—Secretary Knox, rounding out a year as civilian head of the navy, expressed hope today that the policy of aid to Britain would not lead this country into war, but he added that war would be "infinitely preferable" to a peace "accomplished by a surrender to Hitlerism"

As the cabinet's most outspoken champion of all-out assistance to the British, Knox said in an anniversary interview that "I have been realistic enough to pursue that policy wherever the pursuit of such a policy might lead."

"I hope it will not lead us into war," he continued. "But in my eyes a war of defense against Nazi-ism would be infinitely preferable to a peace accomplished by surrender to Hitlerism and all that would mean to the freedom and independence of the American people."

The Chicago publisher, one of the two Republican members of President Roosevelt's cabinet, chose his words carefully in response to a remark that some persons had come to regard him as leader of a "war party."

"No sane man wants war," he said. "I happen to belong to a school of thinkers who regard as imperative a policy of aiding England at whatever cost to ourselves, to promote both our present security and future national welfore."

He added that he did not believe "a free, independent, democratic

TRAINING PERIOD IS DISCUSSED

President Roosevelt Considers With Democratic and Republican Leaders Controversial Question Of Extending Beyond Year Active Service Of Selectees, Reserve Officers and National Guardsmen

DELIBERATION OVER LEGISLATION DELAYED

BULLETIN

Washington, July 14—(AP)—President Roosevelt and legislative leaders were reported reliably today to have agreed to seek prompt congressional action to retain selectees and members of the National Guard in training beyond their one year's service period.

Washington, July 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt discussed with Democratic and Republican leaders today the controversial question of extending beyond a year the active service of selectees, reserve officers and National Guardsmen and permitting their assignment outside the western hemisphere.

Considerable opposition has developed in Congress to such a proposal recently advanced by General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff.

In an effort to settle some of the problems involved, the chief executive met this morning with seven Democratic and two Republican members of the Senate and House. Marshall also was present.

The chief executive has suggested that it might be well to extend the service period, particularly of men assigned to outlying posts, such as those in Alaska, Hawaii and in the Atlantic. Administration officials have taken the position that maximum efficiency would not be served if it were necessary continuously to replace portions of troops on duty at distant stations.

Meanwhile, the Senate military committee deferred for a week consideration of legislation which would authorize President Roosevelt to requisition private property for defense purposes.

The committee was scheduled to take up the measure today, but members said a postponement was agreed upon at the request of Senator Chandler (D-Ky.) who was out of the city and unable to attend the meeting.

Despite the fact that the bill

RATIONING OF MATERIALS IS PROBABLE SOON

Atlantic City, N. J., July 14—(AP)—Leon Henderson asserted bluntly today that "the party is over" as far as the retail sales boom occasioned by defense spending is concerned.

The administrator of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply said in a speech prepared for a meeting of the New York Housewares Manufacturers Association that defense needs would require rationing of the materials which go into manufacturing articles the public has been buying in ever-increasing amounts.

It already has become apparent, he said, that practically no aluminum would be available for civilian use after military needs were met and "it is becoming evident now that the amount of copper, steel, nickel, zinc, chromite, manganese and a number of other materials required for armaments is going to be so great that we won't have enough left over for consumers durable goods."

This, he continued, "means rationing, not by cards at the stores but at the raw materials line, and rationing means that someone is going to get hurt."

Henderson said there was grave danger of inflation and that the office of Price Administration was going to "barge ahead" in the fight against it.

"Before long now," he said,

DEATH OF SOUTHWEST TOWNSHIP MAN FROM A MONTH-OLD BLOW IS BEING INVESTIGATED BY OFFICIALS

Wool Products Must Be Properly Labeled

Washington, July 14—(AP)—Beginning today, all wool products must bear labels setting forth the percentage of wool each contains and whether it is reprocessed or reused wool.

Nine months ago President Roosevelt signed legislation fixing the labeling requirements, and between that time and the effective date, today, merchants were expected either to sell all of their unlabeled merchandise or to label it to conform with the law.

William H. Reynolds, Removed to Warren State Hospital for Treatment, Passes Away Soon After Being Admitted Saturday Evening

INJURED DURING FIGHT

The blow of a flatiron, administered during an argument on the night of June 13, was blamed for the death Saturday of William H. Reynolds, 29, of Pineville, Southwest township.

Lewis Jackson, aged about 40, who is alleged to have wielded the flatiron, was arrested at his home in Enterprise early yesterday morning by Sheriff William C. Stuart and is being held in the county jail on an open charge pending an inquest into the death, planned by Coroner Ed C. Lowrey.

Reynolds died at 6:30 p. m. Saturday in the Warren State Hospital, North Warren, an hour and a half after his arrival by ambulance from the Titusville hospital, where he was admitted about 6:30 o'clock that morning.

A post mortem examination conducted at the state hospital revealed that Reynolds had suffered a severe frontal fracture of the skull.

According to information obtained by Coroner Lowrey, Reynolds was struck on the forehead with a flatiron thrown or swung by Jackson at the home of the latter following an altercation in which Reynolds was ordered by Jackson to leave his premises.

Reynolds left the home, the coroner said he was informed, but returned later, after which Jackson is alleged to have called him vile names. It was then that Reynolds was struck across the forehead with the heavy instrument. The incident took place on Friday, June 13.

The injured man did not seek medical attention until the following day. He appeared with his wife at the office of a Titusville physician on Saturday morning, June 14, and said he had been injured in a fight. Neither he nor his wife said anything about a flatiron, but the doctor quoted Reynolds as saying that "three or four" men had come after him and that they were "too much" for him.

Reynolds had a deep cut on his forehead about 2½ inches long

EXPELLED NAZI OFFICIALS MISS JAPANESE BOAT

Top-Ranking Germans In San Francisco Refuse to Board Nyk Liner With Their Staffs and Families and Change Minds Too Late

FEARS APPREHENSION

San Francisco, July 14—(AP)—A Japanese liner with a polite but determined captain ploughed westward today without Fritz Wiedemann and Dr. Hans Borchers, expelled German consul generals who missed the boat on purpose, then spent 12 hectic hours trying to catch it.

The two top-ranking Nazis refused to board the Nyk liner Yawata Maru with their staffs and families yesterday, fearing that without a British guarantee of safe conduct across the Pacific they would be risking seizure at sea.

Two hours or so after the Yawata Maru sailed, word came from the British embassy in Washington that the Nazis would not be molested enroute.

Wiedemann then tried frantically to have the ship stopped. He radioed the captain asking that the Yawata turn about and come back for them at the German government's expense.

"Please express our greatest regrets we are unable to accept request to return."

This didn't stop Wiedemann, the San Francisco consul-general who was once Adolf Hitler's commanding officer. He telephoned the

DISPUTES INVOLVE MILLIONS

Assembly Spends Weekend Turning Clock Back To Remain On "Saturday", Quitting At Dawn Sunday for few Hours' Sleep, Returning In Middle Afternoon and Recessing Again To Reconvene For Early Morning Session

DEADLOCK CONTINUES ON REAPPORTIONMENT

Harrisburg, July 14—(AP)—Two subjects—unemployment compensation and congressional reapportionment—today held up final adjournment of the Pennsylvania legislautre which, after a long and weary weekend, still was pretending this was Saturday.

Both topics were tied up in conference committees created because the House and Senate failed to agree—a common occurrence ing the six months long session which bids fair to break more records in the state's annals.

At stake were these issues:

1. Possible conversion of the state's unemployment compensation system into federal hands, in the words of Senator Weldon B. Heyburn (R-Del), who also said it might be necessary to call a special session if an act was not passed.

2. The alternative of electing Pennsylvania's congressional delegation at large in 1942 which would mean that all 33 candidates would be on a state-wide ballot if re-apportionment remains unsettled.

Other controveries of the fading session dropped into the background as the Republican Senate and the Democratic House continued at loggerheads over these major subjects.

As a result, a resolution to adjourn the session finally at 11:45 p. m. (EST) Saturday, adopted by the House, became somewhat ironical as the meditations of both branches continued except for a few occasional "recesses."

The legislature spent the weekend turning the clock back to remain on "Saturday," quitting at dawn Sunday for a few hours sleep, returning in the middle of the afternoon and recessing again until midnight largely because some members protested sitting on the Sabbath.

A series of respites enabled overworked printers to catch up with a multitude of conference committee reports, but by that time the disagreement over compensation and reapportionment dictated another recess until noon today.

A few efforts were made in the House and in the Senate to declare another legislative day, but they failed. Senator John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland) offered a resolution to that effect and it was sent to committee.

The compensation issue, as put by Senator Heyburn, who served

She had been struck down 14 hours earlier by an assailant who stepped from the shadows at a bus stop almost within hailing distance of Miss Haber's East Liberty home.

The attacker vanished with Miss Haber's purse, leaving her semi-conscious in the street where she was found by a passing motorist. At the hospital before she lapsed into coma Miss Haber gave police

FORMER WARREN TEACHER NAMED HOFF MANAGER

Rosetta C. Turner, at one time a member of the faculty at the Hoff Business College and prior to that a school teacher in the county, returned here today to assume the management of the business institution, according to I. J. Hoff, its proprietor.

Miss Turner has in recent years been signally successful in the conduct of two different business colleges in the state under her own ownership: The DuBois Business College and, later, the New Kensington Business College, from which she retired some months ago.

Assumption of the post as manager of the Hoff Business College marks a happy return to the local school. For a number of years previous to establishment of her own schools, Miss Turner was head of the stenographic and secretarial department of the local college. Previous to this, she had been prominent in public schools of Warren county, after which she completed special business training courses and taught in another commercial school before coming to Hoff's.

Miss Turner has gained wide note in business college circles in the eastern United States, due to her progressive methods and efficient management. She, likewise, has gained a high reputation as one of the leading business women in her field, and has been most active in the professional, civic and church life of her communities.

She succeeds the late L. J. Holmes, who was partner and manager of the school from 1905 until January, 1941.

Her return to Warren will be welcomed by a host of friends.

TYRONE POWER AND LINDA DARNELL IN "BLOOD AND SAND" AT LIBRARY THEATRE

When "Blood and Sand" first appeared in the United States it was greeted with the universal acclaim. Today it is even more popular—due to the power and vitality with which Vicente Blasco Ibanez wrote.

If there was ever a writer who knew Spain and the dynamic passions that surged through Spanish life, that writer was Ibanez. In "Blood and Sand" he presents that life—flaming tempestuous, fierce and magnificent while it lasted. His is a story of the world's most fearless, reckless, romantic men who live by facing death daily in the blood and sand of the arena.

In making a picture of the famous Ibanez novel, 20th Century-Fox's Production Chief, Darryl F. Zanuck went all out. He cast Tyrone Power in the starring role, assembled a cast of stars headed by Linda Darnell and Rita Hayworth, and had "Blood and Sand" photographed in flaming Technicolor. Little wonder then that the picture, opening today and Tuesday at the Library Theatre, has been acclaimed as a smash hit.

RECRUITER FOR MARINES TO BE HERE TOMORROW

The non-commissioned officer in charge of the Erie recruiting station of the United States Marine Corps announced today that a man from that office will be in Warren tomorrow and on July 22 for the purpose of obtaining men for the regular Marine Corps and the Marine Corps reserve. Reservists are assigned to duty immediately and transferred to the Marine barracks, Paris Island, S. C., to undergo a short period of training.

All men enlisting in the Marine Corps reserve are eligible for promotion, schooling and special assignments, and the pay now received by the men of the regular Marine Corps. An advantage to the reservist, however, is the fact that as soon as the present emergency is over he will be demobilized, released from active duty and returned to his home.

The modified dental requirements are as follows:

Applicants for enlistments in Class III (c), Marine Corps Reserve, may be accepted providing they have eighteen (18) sound vital teeth with at least two (2) opposing molars and not more than four (4) incisors missing which have been satisfactorily replaced.

Applicants must be between the ages of 17 and 30 years old, no less than 64 inches or more than 74 inches tall. Further information may be obtained at room 207, post office building, Warren, or room 8, U. S. court house, Erie.

Jimmy Stewart Is a Corporal Now But He Doesn't Fly Yet!

Jimmy Stewart, who left Hollywood stardom to enter the army air corps as a private, apologized for being late with his letter about army life, written on request of the Special News Service. He's been so busy with things people keep telling him to do, he said, he just couldn't get around to it any sooner. Then he couldn't find anybody to "type it out," so he had to do it in longhand, and spelling never was one of his fortes. (His writing and spelling are O. K.—Ed.).

By Corporal Jimmy Stewart

Moffett Field, Calif., July 12—(The Special News Service)—Well, everything is going along fine.

I've been looking over some of the things I've written down during the last month or so; you know—those things that happen that I don't want to forget, and I notice that I have written down several times about Private Simpson's shoes. Well, Private Simpson got his new shoes O. K. Now I realize that will take some explaining.

Private Simpson and I landed in the air corps here at Moffett Field about the same time and about a week after we got here we were sent down to be issued uniforms. Well, I was in line right behind Private Simpson and when we came to get our shoes the sergeant there in the supply room asked Private Simpson what size shoe he wore and Private Simpson said he wore size 15, four A. Well, there was a sort of hush came over the supply room and then everybody, all together, looked down. And there they were! I guess no one had noticed Private Simpson's feet before because everyone had been pretty busy. But there they were.

Now, about that shoe size. You understand the 15 is the length and the four A is the width. Now, put those two together and you have quite a shoe. Well, the sergeant there in the supply room turned sort of white and said, "Just wait here a minute" and went away and came back with a lieutenant and pointed down and said, "There they are, sir."

The lieutenant was very calm about the whole thing and wrote down the size on the form sheet and told Private Simpson that the shoes would be constructed and that he would receive them sometime in the future.

Private Simpson wasn't sensitive about the size of his shoes at all and no one kidded him about it either—which is understandable. After all, when you see the Grand Canyon or Niagara Falls, you don't laugh; you're impressed.

Well, the shoes were a pretty long time coming, but one day Private Simpson came up to me with a grin on his face and said that a communique had come through stating that the shoes had been seen somewhere in the east and would arrive out here within a week. And, sure enough, several mornings later, down the company street came the shoes, with Private Simpson in them, as proud as proud could be. So Private Simpson got his new shoes O. K.

A great many new Selective Service men have come to this post during the last month or so, and everybody has been pretty busy. Now that so many men are coming in we have to sweat out pretty long chow lines—in other words, you have to wait in a long line before you eat. I like that "sweat out" expression they use in the army. You don't wait for anybody in the army—you "sweat him out."

They have made me a drill instructor up here. Whenever a lot of men come in, each of the instructors takes a group and starts them out on the fundamentals of drill. I shouldn't have any trouble projecting my voice after the practice I'm getting up here. You really have to "speak up" out on the drill field, when you're giving commands especially when you are competing against a strong wind right in your face and 50 or 60 airplanes flying around about you.

Speaking of airplanes, I have been tremendously impressed by the training these flying cadets are getting here at Moffett Field. Although I'm not on flying status in the air corps (I'm still hoping that I'll be able to fly later), I have learned a lot about the flight training by talking to some of the cadets and by reading about it.

This is the second stage of their training, called the basic stage. The cadets come here from primary schools, where they have learned previous flying in small, low horsepower training planes. The plane they fly as basic is a much heavier plane, with lots of power and lots of the characteristics of the high speed, high horsepower equipment they will fly in advanced training, which is the stage after basic.

I was wondering the other day if all the mothers and fathers all over the country who have boys who are cadet material realize how good this training is. The American air-cooled engine, used in all army training planes, is the finest, most reliable in the world. The American training plane is the strongest, safest in the world. I don't mean to bite the hand that used to feed me, but I don't think the movies that have been made about the air corps have done it justice, or even come close.

If a boy becomes a cadet, it doesn't mean that every day he goes out and defies death in a flying machine. There aren't any more unanswered problems in army flying. The army has worked out a precise, safe, effective way to fly, and in learning to fly the army way the cadet gets training you can't beat anywhere, and as he learns to fly the army way, things slip into his character which will never leave him; things like alertness and positiveness and self-assurance and courage.

I've talked to a lot of these cadets up here and they're all pretty keen about their job. And, believe me, it's a man-size job. There's no Rover Boy stuff in army flying.

Well, I guess I sort of got wound up about the cadets, but Ill tell you it's a kick to see how this army training works and gets results. Just as it's a kick to see the pride that a master airplane mechanic and his crew have in the airplane they maintain on the ground. That airplane is their baby. Their responsibility is to keep the plane in absolutely perfect condition, and they nurse it along like it was a human. In other words, I think it's quite a kick to be around people who are enthusiastic about what they are doing, and they certainly are in the air corps.

Well, as I said, everything's going along fine.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE . . . .
MASTERS PAIRS WILL TOP NATIONAL TOURNEY LIST

By WM. E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Banner event of the national championships tournament at Asbury Park, N. J., the week of August 4, will be the Masters Pairs. When this annual contest was inaugurated nearly a decade ago, only a handful of players in the country were eligible to compete.

Today so many players have won their spurs, and so eager are all players to gain the distinction of having entered the Masters Pairs, that the event may have to be arbitrarily restricted in size.

The schedule allows for four sessions of the Masters Pairs. The plan has always been to avoid eliminations, each pair playing throughout and meeting every other pair. The natural top limit under this plan is 64 pairs. The prospective entry for the contest in August is well over this figure. It may be necessary to close entry after the first 64 applications have been received.

The hands played in the Masters Pairs are of interest to the whole bridge world. Many of them are discussed years afterward. Today's hand was one of the "heart-breakers" from the 1940 tournament.

At many tables North and South got to five spades, "saving" against the vulnerable heart game. With only one ace and one king in the two hands, they nevertheless were able to make five spades through the freak patterns, plus a lucky break in diamonds.

When West gained the lead with the ace of diamonds, he led his trump, but even this defense could not defeat the contract. North still had four trumps with which to run three hearts and one diamond. The one diamond ruff was sufficient to establish the ten.

"I NEVER REALIZED, until I changed to Camels, that a cigarette could be so much milder and yet have all that wonderful flavor," adds Miss Van Nuys from the pool's edge (above). Yes, no matter how much you smoke, Camels always hit the spot—and they're extra mild with less nicotine in the smoke.

VACATIONS

With a greater number of people employed than has been the case in many years it naturally follows that more people than ordinary are enjoying vacations this summer.

Many of these people perhaps do not know how to get the best benefits out of their vacations, and a good percentage, it may be depended upon, will come home all worn out after the so-called period of rest, less able to do good work than when they started.

People should not jump too suddenly from the sedentary habits of routine lives into the exhausting stunts of a strenuous vacation. The man whose usual exercise is merely twisting in a swivel chair is likely to get lame muscles if he runs bases at the ball game as he used to when a kid.

Also the young lady who can't walk half a mile at home without getting out the family car, is likely to become exhausted if she tries to climb a 5,000 foot mountain.

An active vacation is a wonderful thing, but indoor workers who try to perform stunts that would tire out a farmer or a freight handler, need a little preliminary training.

Plan your vacation sensibly and you'll come back rested!

WHEN THE NAZIS WERE LATE

The Nazis don't always move first, according to H. A. Peterson, Australian trade commissioner at Batavia, Java. According to Peterson, they moved second in the Netherlands East Indies, and landed in concentration camps.

A plot of local Germans, hundreds of them well-armed and equipped, had been formed. On word that Hitler had invaded the Low Countries, they were to seize Batavia and Surabaya. But word of the invasion came first to the Dutch authorities, by code cable from Holland. They moved first, swooped down on the plotting Germans, seized their stores of guns and ammunition, and clapped them all into concentration camps.

Hitler moved first in Poland, Norway, Denmark, Holland—the list is too long to recount—but it is pleasant to record that there is at least one place where they got the jump on him.

THOSE NEGATIVE ICELANDERS

The Parliament of Iceland (the oldest in the world, having existed continuously for 100 years) voted 39 to 3 to approve the co-operation of American forces with British to prevent seizure of the island by the Nazis.

Three Icelanders voted in the negative. They were Communists.

That's odd, since the official Communist line, now that Russia has been invaded, is "Everything to beat Hitler." Now you might have assumed that to prevent Hitler from seizing Iceland was helping to beat him. But not to these Icelandic Comrades. How come?

The only way we can explain it is that Iceland is remote, and that telephone and telegraph connections with the Kremlin are not all the Comrades might desire. So there they were, caught hanging to last week's line instead of this week's.

STRANGLING CULTURE

What the "new order" in Europe means to the conquered: In Czechoslovakia, all Czech schools will be closed at the end of this year, the buildings confiscated. The universities, now completely German-dominated, allowed Czech students to return this year if they met certain requirements, but not 1 per cent ever returned. The Prague City Library was temporarily closed, then reopened. But of its 15,000 books, 10,000 had been removed from the shelves by the censors in the interim. The Sokol cultural and athletic societies have been completely dissolved.

It is thus that the Germans elect to usher in "the new day"—with darkness.

The Warren airport experienced one of its busiest days Sunday. As a matter of fact activities of the fliers continued until well into the night.

The news from the Russian front is just about the same as it was last week—both sides claiming success.

The Great Yoo-Hoo Issue

• EDSON'S WASHINGTON COLUMN

BY PETER EDSON
Times-Mirror Washington Correspondent

Washington, July 14—To read the newspapers of the city of Washington you might get the idea that the most important function of Congress was to govern the District of Columbia. More space is devoted to the goings-on before the District committees of Congress than almost every other subject. This is perhaps excusable, for Washington is after all home to the "cliff dwellers," the people who were born here or who don't work for the government.

Why Congress should have to bother with all these purely local affairs is something you'll have to refer back to the founding fathers and the Congress of 1878, who figured out this complex system of non-local government. So large do these problems of local government loom in the congressional scheme of things that every Monday in the House is designated as District Day. That day the representatives corrugate their brows over problems that would be settled by a body no more august than a town council in any city of equal size. For sheer cumbersomeness, this gives Washington not only the most unwieldly, but also the most expensive top government in the country—500 senators and representatives at $10,000 a year each—worrying at times about such things as traffic regulation and local tax rates.

Currently, the big worry is over the police problem. There are only six police forces in Washington now.

There is the Secret Service, the Federal Bureau of Investigation of super-snooper G-men under J. Edgar Hoover, which has its headquarters in Washington but doesn't bother with local crimes.

There is the National Park police force under Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes, which policee the great open spaces, and the Capitol police force of congressional patronge appointees, which stays around the halls of Congress to keep the tourists from taking the Capitol apart for souvenirs. There is the Public Buildings Administration force, which guards the buildings the Capitol police don't, and finally, the District police force of more than 1400 men.

This list leaves out the postal inspectors, the internal revenue agents, the border patrol, the customs inspectors, the T-men of the Treasury's narcotics and secret service counterfeiting divisions, the Marine Corps, the military police and the Army and Navy intelligence sections, but even without these you would think that Washington should be the best policed city in the world. On the contrary, it is sad to relate that your country's capital has a police scandal as juicy as anything ever turned up.

It's the District police force that all the shouting is about, particularly the detective force and the homicide squad which have had 79 violent death cases to deal with since June 1, including six murders culminating in the horrible attack on government worker Jessie Elizabeth Streiff a few weeks ago.

A sub-committee of House District Committee is now conducting an investigation in the congressional hearing fashion with the net result that the superintendent of District police, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, will probably be retired and the detective bureau will be upheaved.

Testimony before the investigating committee, including admissions by the police officers themselves, revealed a police organization as faulty as ever existed. The seven men on the homicide squad, one lieutenant and six sergeants, have regularly been called off their

SYMBOLIC of Good Neighborliness and the attitude of most South American republics toward American democracy is this 1939 Paraguay issue, displaying the flag and eagle of the United States along with the Paraguayan standard.

Although physical battle has been kept from the shores of South America, with a few notable exceptions, the war of propaganda has been carried on intensively by the Nazis virtually from the day of Hitler's ascension to power. Aware of this Fascist infiltration into the Western Hemisphere, the United States has been pursuing a policy of counter-propaganda.

Paraguayan territory was first explored by Sebastian Cabot in 1526 and 10 years later a fort was built on the site of what is now Ascuncion, the capital.

Spanish rule was overthrown in 1811. For a number of years, a policy of isolation was followed, but Paraguay eventually became involved in a catastrophic war with Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay which ended in 1870 with large losses for Paraguay.

Until recently, revolutions frequently flared and disturbed the smooth path of progress.

CRANIUM CRACKERS

VAST RUSSIA

Germany's invasion of Russia brings to mind many questions about this vast land that has been for many years much of a mystery, and in the past two war years the enigma of Europe. Set your sights on Moscow for the answers.

1. What were the principal resource objectives of Germany's attack on Russia
2. What previous man of conquest marched to Moscow, but was soon driven out of Russia?
3. How many times as large as the United States is the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, and how far is it from Leningrad to Vladivostok?
4. What office in the U. S. S. R. does Joseph Stalin hold?
5. What three names has the city of Leningrad held, and after whom was it named?

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—Answering the mail orders:

F. T. D., Carson City, Nev.—The principal reason that the U. S. had no definite advance information on the German declaration of war against Russia is that the state department and most other people reasoned, on the basis of their information, that Joseph Stalin would not fight. There were a few observers who predicted the Nazi-Communist war and The Associated Press carried a story from Ankara that forecast hostilities, but even those brave souls opined it would be sometime in the future—not the present. It was felt that any open conflict, no matter what its outcome, would mean the end of Stalin's regime in Russia—therefore, he would not permit the situation to come to shooting warfare, even if he had to make great concessions.

I. T., Nashville, Tenn.—Secretary of State Hull, though not seriously ill, is not in the best of health. During periods when he is indisposed, the reins of the state department are nearly always handed over completely to Under-secretary Sumner Welles. That is probably why you have seen Welles more often in the news recently than Hull.

A. F. A., Miami Beach, Fla.—The "economic warfare" machinery has not been set up simply because of a behind-the-scenes scrap over what department shall handle it. The leading contestants now are Jesse Jones (as Secretary of Commerce) and Cordell Hull (as Secretary of State). Jones contends that it is primarily a matter of commerce and economics and therefore belongs in his department. Hull contends that any action whatever by the proposed commission would so affect our foreign policy that it would be silly to place it anywhere else than under the watchful eye of the state department.

G. L., Houston, Tex.—Men selected for the army air corps must have been citizens of the United States for at least 10 years.

R. S., West Chester, Pa.—I take it all back. Lt. Col. Harold N. Gilbert is the man credited with originating the phrase, "Keep 'Em Flying." Colonel Gilbert is in the adjutant general's office and we did know, as I reported, that the phrase came from that general direction. However, a number of army officials did claim to remember that it was used in the World War, that it originated in England, that it came from the naval aviation training center at Pensacola, Fla. There seems now to be no doubt of it. Colonel Gilbert had the idea and was the first to try to promote it. His superiors took it up and gave it an official boost. There is one fly in the ointment. The phrase does not seem to be sweeping the country. Like a popular song, it may take hold at any time, or it may lie around for years virtually unnoticed and then overnight become as common in conversational stock as "So long," "What's doing?" "Thumbs up," or "I'll be seeing you."

Mrs. L. S. T., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—According to Rep. Herbert Bonner of North Carolina, who should know, there is about 1¼ cents worth of tobacco (farm price) in a 15-cent package of cigarets. The rest is processing, manufacturing, wrapping, advertising, state and federal taxes, and commissions.

K. B., Columbia, Mo.—Junior and senior medical students may apply for membership in the Medical Administrative Corps Reserve. After completing their studies, they then will be appointed medical officers in the regular medical corps reserve. The dean of your medical school will handle your application for you. Acceptance in the MACR will relieve you of being called immediately for selective service—unless, of course, you flunk out of medical school.

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

by WATKINS E. WRIGHT

YESTERDAY: Apparently, Luella Pell thinks, the New York venture of the Henry Pells is just not working out. For Henry is, she fears, neglecting his good real estate job in an attempt to get into radio, and she is sure he is neglecting her for Marie Mason, the radio singer from their home town who has taken such an interest in Henry's career. But Luella does not know what she can do, and does nothing.

Chapter 16

Tip From The Boss

MARIE MASON had been right when she said she felt that there were going to be some definite developments before long regarding the radio program. Maybe it was woman's intuition, and maybe it was just "plain old garden-variety hunch," as Henry had expressed it; but whatever it was, Rector got in touch with Marie the next week.

"We're going to have a very important conference," Rector said. "We're planning to get things in shape for a sort of dress rehearsal."

"Oh, that's marvelous!" Marie exclaimed. "I'm delighted Mallum."

"We'll want to use some of Bill's songs, a comedy sketch of Emma Latham's, and perhaps some other material," Rector continued. "Anyway, I'd like for you to get in touch with Pell, and tell him we're to gather at my office tomorrow evening."

"Of course!" said Marie. "I'll telephone him at once. But when is the rehearsal?"

"We'll discuss that at the conference."

"And how about an audience, Malcolm? After all, we ought to get the reaction of someone besides ourselves."

"Yes, I know," Rector said. "We'll handle all that later. Don't worry."

And Marie hadn't worried. Nor did she lost any time in getting in touch with Henry. She got him at his office, while he was having a visit from the manager of the realty concern.

"And I think, Henry dear," she said, when she had explained about the conference and the rehearsal, that we should do some rehearsing ourselves. I mean, the songs. We want to be perfect if we have to do them before an audience."

"Fine!" Henry said. "Thanks a lot for calling me about it all, Marie. . . ."

"Why not come up to my place this evening? Marie suggested. The sooner we get started, the better."

"Right. I'll be there Eight-thirty all right with you?"

"Splendid. I'll be looking for you."

Henry hung up the receiver, and turned to see the manager's gaze upon him. It was a gaze that made him feel uncomfortable.

"Sorry we were interrupted, Mr. Smithers," he said. "But it was about a little side-line I'm interested in."

"Yes, I know," said Mr. Smithers. "I understand that you're becoming—er—more or less involved with—"

"I beg your pardon," Henry cut in, on the defensive.

"—with radio songs, or something of the sort," Mr. Smithers finished.

"Yes, sir, that's right," Henry said, smiling. "I wrote some verses at home, and they may be sung over the air."

"I see." Mr. Smithers turned to go. "We like our employees to have hobbies, Pell," he said as he reached the office door and turned. "But we prefer them to work at them after hours. You can understand that, I'm sure."

"Yes, sir," said Henry, feeling like a small boy, and hating himself for feeling that way. "But my songs hardly come under the heading of hobbies. I hope to make some money out of them, and—"

"Very commendable, I'm sure," Mr. Smithers said coldly. "But the money we are paying you is for your time while in your office. Please keep that in mind. And don't forget about that property in Chicago. We may have to send out someone to handle it for us."

"Very well," said Henry, this time leaving off the "Sir."

He frowned at the door which closed behind Mr. Smithers' stiff and dignified back. "Old crab!" he said under his breath. But he went to work with a sort of grim determination—as though he wanted to show the Old Crab that Henry Pell could earn what he was being paid, and still make something on the side.

Disappointment

HE WENT up to Marie's apartment, as she had suggested. It was but a sort of prologue to many other trips there—for Marie insisted they must rehearse alone until they were letter perfect. They did, and they were! And now everything was all set.

Once more Henry Pell was on his way home from the realty office, and he was trying not to feel elated. He had some news to speak to Luella, and he wanted to tell it calmly. He didn't want a scene. There had been far too many of them of late; and they hurt a fellow down. Luella, desperately silent, depressingly on the verge of tears, hurt, forlorn. It was awful. It did no one any good, and everyone a lot of harm. Well, after tonight—

He hurried up the two flights of stairs. He opened the door of the apartment and went in.

"Luella?" he called. "Are you home?"

"Yes," Luella replied from the kitchenette, remembering with a little ache in her heart how Henry used to barge in, calling out, "Hi, there, where's my Woman?" Evidently she wasn't his woman any longer. Maybe he thought her a millstone about his neck, or something like that. "I'm mixing your favorite salad, darling," she added.

"Thanks," Henry said. "But I've got to eat in a hurry. I haven't much time."

"Are you going to work again tonight?" Luella asked. She came into the living-room, wearing an apron, and stirring the contents of a salad bowl with a large wooden spoon. "I was hoping we could do something together tonight. It's been days since we—"

"I've got to get into my evening things," Henry interrupted. "We are going—"

"Your evening things!"

"Yes. And for heaven's sake, Luella, don't look so horrified! I'm not going out philandering, if that's what you're thinking about."

"Well, what are you going to do?"

"We're having a rehearsal of the radio program tonight," Henry said. "It's being given before an invited audience in one of the radio broadcasting studios, just as though it was actually on the air, only—"

"Isn't it terribly sudden — the idea of a rehearsal?"

"In a way, yes," said Henry. "Although we've been planning for it for several days. That's why I've had to work so hard—on the songs, I mean. But today Rector telephoned and said there were some big shots here from Hollywood—men who know radio values, so far as the entertainment angle is concerned, and so he wants to put on a show for them tonight."

"But why the formal attire?"

"We want to be impressive"—Henry grinned—"elegant, you know, and all that."

"I see. Then that means I'll have to wear my most formal gown."

"No, Luella. I—I—that is, you're not going."

"Oh!"

"I'm sorry, but—"

"I thought you said there was to be an invited audience."

"I did." Henry took a deep breath. "The rehearsal is being put on before about fifty people, but only those interested in entertainment values. Some Broadway producers, the men from Hollywood, and some men who are interested in a business way. We want to get the reaction of people like that. Understand?"

Luella nodded. "Yes," she said. Just that and nothing more.

Henry saw her stricken look and felt a pang of sympathy mingled with one of annoyance.

"Don't stand there looking like a hurt child, honey," he said. "Wait until the program actually goes on the air, and then I'll take you to a broadcast."

Luella Has A Plan

"THAT'LL be terribly sweet of you, I'm sure," said Luella. "And don't forget to buy me a lollipop."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Treat a child as a child—that's what I mean," said Luella. "I have ceased to be a woman in your opinion." She turned and went back to the kitchenette.

But she had lost interest in preparing Henry's favorite salad.

In fact she had lost interest in just about everything. She was low. She was resentful. She was angry. Henry was going to a rehearsal, and he was getting into his formal clothes. That probably meant that Marie would be all dolled up like Mrs. Astor's horse. It probably meant that there was going to be a gay evening for Henry—if not for his wife.

It was right at that moment that a voice spoke to Luella; a voice that might have come from another Luella.

It said: "Listen, you, why don't you give that husband something to think about?"

"What?" asked Luella. "What, for instance?"

"Tommy McIntyre, and the Planetarium," said the voice, with emphasis.

"Oh, but I couldn't do that. . . . I—"

"Nonsense! . . . Maybe if that husband of yours knew that Tommy McIntyre had poured out his love for you while the two of you stood beneath a lot of make-believe stars and planets and things, he would stop thinking about himself all the time."

"Maybe so, but I—I—"

"Listen, Luella Brown Pell, are you in love with Tommy—or on the verge of falling?"

"Of course not! . . . The very idea!"

"Then stop stalling. If your conscience is clear, that's all that matters. You should march right in there and tell that husband of yours all about it—tell him anything. It'll do him good—the self-centered, radio-songwriting Son of a Gun!"

Leulla stared at the salad bowl. She picked up the big wooden spoon and began to use it savagely, not gently as the recipe had said. Yes, Tommy—a lot of stars in a manufactured heaven — and talk of love.

"I've felt myself being drawn to you ever since that first night," Tommy had said. "I thought at first it was because you were understanding, and because it was comforting to have someone to talk to about Marie. But now I no longer want to talk about Marie. I want to talk about us, Luella."

Heaven alone knew what else Tommy would have said if the lecturer hadn't begun explaining a lot of planets.

How Nature Helps Reds on Stalin Line

Nature, as usual, is on the side of the defender in the Russo-German conflict as Nazis hurl new attacks at the Stalin Line, but even her aid has not halted Hitler's mechanized forces in the past. Map shows how Russia builds her great line, using rivers and difficult terrain as natural defenses.

Around New York

By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—P. G. Wodehouse did himself no good with some people by his broadcast from Berlin. After a year in an internment camp, during which he wrote two novels and expressed himself as feeling fine, the noted British humorist announced that he had been unable to work up any real hatred of the Nazis.

At once caustic comment began to appear in print and in the manuscripts of the commentators. His friends, rallying to his defense, scoff at the "appeaser" charge, saying he is far too good a businessman to endanger his wide American sales through pro-Nazi talk at this time. Wodehouse is one of the world's highest paid writers. Once he took $185,000 out of Hollywood for not writing a line. He just went out on contract, sat around until the contract was up, collected his wages, and came back to New York. His comments on Hollywood at that time did not endear him to the picture front offices.

ONE notes another trend in the war's progress with the influx of Russian jokes, which probably could be called new, as most jokes are, but which really are the same old puns dolled in new clothing and playing a return date.

The most familiar of these is about the shill in front of a waterfront bar who enticed pedestrians with cries of "come on in—meet the Russian princess."

After the unwary pedestrian had sat around for awhile, sipping a drink, he said to the waiter, "But where is the princess?"

"Oh, don't worry about that," the waiter soothed him. "After a couple more of these drinks you'll be able to see the whole royal family."

Another is the tale of the moody Russian who stared gloomily into his vodka for an hour or more. With each drink he became moodier, and finally he growled to the barkeep, "I'm sick of this confounded, no good country. I'm going back to America."

"Where do you think you are?" demanded the barkeep.

"Omisk," yelled the Russian.

"Scram," urged the waiter, grabbing the disconsolate Muscovite by the seat of the britches. "You're in Twenty-Third Street."

THIS next item doesn't concern Russians, though it is about long hair, and maybe that's what suggested it. Anyway, people walking in Sixth avenue or coming out of the Music Hall are regaled by a sign in a barber shop nearby which flaunts this legend:

"We cater to so many celebrities nowadays that our haircuts no longer look human." By "celebrities" could they mean long haired actors?

MANHATTAN has a chain of new pineapple juice stands. . . . They're the traditional fronts with half coconut shells set in plaster. . . . What makes them so noticeable are the sharp cries coming from behind the coolers. . . . "Step up and get yours," is the invitation. Every soda-jerker in every stand yells the same thing, which leads one to suspect that the sales manager has been giving the boys a pep talk. These stands never close. They do a nice business in the heat of the day, but I rarely see anyone patronizing them after midnight.

which required six stitches to close. The Titusville physician said the injured man had lost considerable blood and that the wound was bandaged when he entered the office, but showed no signs of having received medical treatment.

Five days later, on June 19, Reynolds and his wife returned to the physician's office to have the stitches removed. It was then that Mrs. Reynolds informed the doctor her husband had been struck with a flatiron.

Reynolds apparently suffered no immediate ill effects from his injury other than a number of severe headaches of which he complained. He continued his work for the Hurley-Newson Electric Company, of Erie, on the Pleasantville school building.

Last Friday night, Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds attended a Titusville theatre and soon after their return home Mr. Reynolds become seriously ill and violent. About 2 a. m. members of the family telephoned a Pleasantville physician and said they needed a sleeping potion for the distressed man.

Reynolds became increasingly violent and the family and neighbors who had been called in decided to take him to the Titusville hospital. When they arrived at the institution, Reynolds was completely delirious and threshed around so violently that he thrust his head through the rear window of the automobile.

In the hospital emergency room, he was treated for a three-inch gash on his forehead, inflicted by the broken glass, which required 14 stitches to close. He was given a stiff hypodermic to subdue him and was strapped to a cot.

Steps were immediately taken by hospital officials to secure commitment papers for the Warren State Hospital and when they were obtained, Reynolds was brought to North Warren, still strapped to a cot.

Coroner Lowrey, who was called after the man's death, said he would conduct an inquest later this week. A jury was impanelled and after the body was viewed, adjournment was taken until a later date.

Members of the jury are Arthur Barr, Claude Cochran, Richard Jones, Harold Baker, Richard Forbes and Bruce Trussler.

Reynolds was born in Franklin, June 1, 1912. He was married May 16, 1938, to Miss Martha Mae Orcutt, of Butler, and besides the widow he leaves a son, Donald M. Reynolds, aged two years. He also leaves his mother, Mrs. Elsie Maginne Ashbaugh, and the following half-sisters and half-brothers: Mrs. Alice Reninger, Miss Cella Ashbaugh and Miss Delores Ashbaugh, of R. D. 3, Titusville; Mrs. Lucille Gaglaradi and Irvin Ashbaugh, of Buffalo, and Miss Dorothy Mae Ashbaugh, of R. D. 3, Pleasantville.

Removal was made to the Arnold Funeral Home in Titusville, where services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Tuesday, with the Rev. Ivan Hunsberger, of the Pleasantville U. B. church, officiating. Interment will be in the Stone church cemetery near Emlenton.

Beautiful black Persian lamb is draped and fitted as if it were wool fabric in the stunning, full-length coat at left. It has set-in pockets, a tiny collar, full sleeves and armholes that are deep and wide without being bulky. The mink coat, right, for day or evening, is distinguished by a puffed, swirled, bias border down the front and around the cuffs. It hangs loosely from the shoulders and is positively featherweight.

National Forge Cops Doubleheader From Ford City Crew

'Rosey', Hines and Kulick Star In Dual Conquest By Forgers

Except for a spray of errors in th ball games, Sunday's double-ader at Irvine between Ford ty and the National Forge pre-nted district baseball fans with e of their finest treats this sea-n. The Forgers won both games scores of 10 to 3 and 4 to 3, t the peppery play and harmless, t colorful protests of the Ford ty crew held the interest of the ns through both contests.

Harry Rosequist was the star of e first ball game, though he shar- honors with "Diz" Hines who tched a neat six hitter for the orrison crew. "Rosey" hit two iples and a home run in four at-mpts in the opener to settle the sue in favor of the NFO ball club. "Emmy" Morrison also helped in e scoring department in the first me with another home run. Mor-son's circuit clout caused quite delay in the ball game because a misinterpretation of the round rules by Ford City.

In the night cap, Frank "Lefty" ulick set the visitors down with nother six hitter over the seven ning route. Kulick scattered the ngles well to preserve a two run ad which his mates had given m.

Next Sunday the Akron Celtics ill play at Wilder Field, and eantime Business Manager Jim-y Kannen, of the Forge, is aiting word from Mike Cannavi-o in regard to his latest challenge the Meadville Pioneers.

HOSPITAL NINE SHADES LUDLOW BY 5-4 MARGIN

The State Hospital resumed its winning ways Saturday in defeating the Ludlow Wildcats for the second time this season, by a 5 to 4 count in ten innings on the North Warren diamond.

The invaders forced the struggle all the way, holding a 3 to 0 lead from the third inning until the seventh, when the Hospital finally dashed in on a few bingles.

The Wildcats scored a run in the eighth to regain the lead, but North Warren tied the game again in their half of that canto.

Then in the tenth inning, Jim Rose, who had pitched a pretty fair ball game, came up to win it all by himself with a long home run out beyond left field.

The Hospital was without the services of Harold Brown, "Chuck" Clawson, and Pilot "Rabbit" Swanson, all in Cleveland over the week-end, where the first two were given trials with the Indians.

Next Saturday afternoon the North Warren crew will play host to their staunchest rivals, the Gowanda, N. Y., State Hospital nine The game will start at 2:30 p. m.

SPORT SPATTERINGS

LET'S HAVE THAT PIONEER-FORGE SERIES

All this season fans have been asking this desk and Business Manager Jimmy Kannen, of the NFO baseball club, why Mike Cannavino's Meadville Pioneers aren't booked for a series with the Irvine outfit. Jimmy has spent most of the Forge profits on postage to communicate with Cannavino, and Mike hasn't even come through with an answer. The latest, and last, letter that Cannavino is going to get, according to Jimmy, is reprinted below, in which Jimmy explains to his baseball public just why the Pioneers haven't engaged the Forgers up to now.

Dear Mike:

The fans in Irvine, Youngsville, and Warren used to ask me "Why don't you book Cannavino's team from Meadville?" I was very patient and told them that we were trying to book you. Which you know is true—(If you don't—just count the number of letters I have sent you this summer). Lately, however, they don't ask why we don't book you—now they're asking why won't you give us a game and the answer to their minds is that you are afraid we'll trim you.

There's a rumor here that you are giving a bonus of $25.00 to any team that beats you. If this is true you are interested in getting a good baseball game—or could it be that you are simply putting the pressure on your team) We don't know—but if you want good games why don't you book us? If you are putting pressure on your team then naturally you aren't interested in GOOD competition and all you have to do is to say "No" and we'll lay off.

Mike—I use two fingers to type letters and I'm getting d - - n tired of wearing them out writing you letters and asking for an exchange of games. This will be the last time I'll approach you for a game and I surely would appreciate an answer to let me know if you're still alive so that come next Decoration Day I'll know whether to send a letter to you or flowers for your sod.

We're not interested in your $25.00 bonus. All we want is a home and home series of games.

We'll trade you August 17 at Irvine for Labor Day (Sept. 1) at Meadville and if you can't call that a good exchange for you, I'll eat my hat. Now—all I want is your answer "Yes," or "No."

Yours,
Jim Kannen,
National Forge Baseball Club.

Now, the above challenge may not sound to be in the best of moods—nor should it. Cannavino has been finding every way possible to step around a series with the Forge this season, and he'd better answer this letter or it's going to cause quite a rumpus. So, now, Mike, what do you say? You're not giving up your life, just possibly a couple of ball games. Of course, your team is good when your competition is mediocre, but sign for a Forge series and you'll get a few real games of baseball on that ledger.

Zivic, Barbara Go Tonight In Philly

Philadelphia, July 14—(AP)—Fritzie Zivic, Pittsburgh's welterweight champion, is confident of turning the tables on Johnny Barbara, of Chicago, when they clash tonight in a 12-round non-title bout at the Philadelphia Gardens.

Making his first ring appearance since he battered Al "Bummy" Davis to defeat in New York recently, Zivic intends to wipe out the sting of two setbacks at the hands of Barbara.

Looking ahead to a title defense against Red Cochrane in Newark on July 28, Zivic is sure he will "stop Barbara in six or seven rounds." Zivic is a 2 to 1 favorite.

On the other hand Barbara declares the Pittsburgh battler "can't fight a man who crowds and roughs him. He may beat the greatest fighters, but he can't beat me. I'll take him again.

Chink Collins Wins County Golf Title

Chink Collins won the county golf championship at Maplehurst yesterday with low gross of a field of thirty golfers over thirty six holes of 156.

Elliott Smith, who slipped into the tournament though being a resident of Jamestown, N. Y., was permitted to play and finished second. Dr. Graves, one of Warren's best amateur golfers, came in third. The scores of these two were 160 and 162 respectively.

Other winners of the remaining bogey tourneys and special prizes will be announced tomorrow by the committee which put over the most successful Warren County Golf Tourney in years.

Steve Kovach Wins State Amateur Toga

Philadelphia, July 14—(AP)—Steve Kovach, new state amateur golf champion, is ready to turn professional.

All he's awaiting for is the "right offer."

The little 146-pound Pittsburgh steel worker won the state crown Saturday, after five years of trying, by beating Bill Hyndman, of Philadelphia, 3 and 2, in the final round of the three-day match play tourney.

Kovach explained "I've had several offers to turn pro since I won the Western Pennsylvania Open. If the right one comes along, I'll do it."

MARCONI CLUB 11-10 WINNERS OVER MAYVILLE

The Marconi Club entry in the Interstate Baseball League won their second game yesterday at Mayville defeating their hosts by a close 11 to 10 score.

"Stretch" Campbell's flawless relief hurling brought the Marconis their victory after Floyd Kifer got in bad shape along about the fifth inning.

Tony Notoro hit a double for the winners, one of the two extra base hits in the game.

The contest was originally a home game for Warren. But Russell Field could not be fixed good enough on which to play, and so the Marconis are playing their home games all away from this city.

Bronx Bombers Trim Chisox Twice; Cubs Slow Down Brooklyn

BY SID FEDER
Associated Press Sports Writer

For the benefit of those folks who think baseballs second name is DiMaggio—and vice versa—this is as good a time as any to point out that pitchers really still are of some use in the game beside helping to keep up a club's intake average at mealtime.

Of course, none of 'em look any good when Jolting Joe is waving his war club at them these days. Ted Lyons and Lefty Thornton Lee of the Chicago White Sox are the latest to join Joe's personal "serve-it-up-and-duck" department. The big guy connected safely off each of them yesterday, as the sizzling Yankees swept a twin bill, to run his all-time record for hitting to 53 consecutive games.

But Sunday was by far the best day for twirlers the big leagues have seen this season.

Three tossers served shutouts, three more gave up only one run. Eleven of the twirling jobs were six-hitters or less, with Southpaw Ken Heintzelman of the Pirates and old Rufus the Red Ruffing, the Yankee key man who turned in his seventh straight win, pace-making the parade.

The Yanks, riding a 14-game winning streak, were five full games in front of the American League pack, while the Dodgers' National League lead was narrowed down to 2½ games over the St. Louis Cardinals, largely because of Claude Passeau.

Claude, who labors for the Chicago Cubs threw a neat six-hitter at the Brooklyns in the opener of a twin bill, and, what with the backing of a 16-hit attack, took a 10-3 victory. In the afterpiece, young Newt Kimball, starting his first encounter for the year, clouted the Cubs with a six-hitter for a 3-1 victory.

The Cards flailed the Phillies twice. Lon Warneke's eight-hitter produced a 7-2 win in the opener, while Bill Crouch came up with a sparkling four-inning relief job to save an 8-5 decision in the second act.

Rufus the Red went to work in the nightcap for the Yanks, had a no-hitter going into the eighth inning and wound up with a 1-0 three-hit win in 11 innings for his tenth victory of the year. In the opener, Spud Chandler pitched five-hit ball to win his first victory of the campaign, 8-1.

Heintzelman hurled two-hit ball, allowing only one man to get as far as second and tossed the Pirates to a 4-0 picnic. This boosted the Bucs' winning streak to seven straight, but it ended right there as Bill Terry's terriers came back to take the nightcap, 8-2, behind Hal Schumacher's five-hit hurling. Just for the Records, Frankie Frisch still had Arky Vaughan holding down the bench.

Also missing was Ted Williams, from the Boston Red Sox lineup. He hurt his ankle Saturday and his absence yesterday was about as unimportant as your right arm. The Sed Sox run-making machinery had monkey wrenches in it and they lost to Cleveland, 2-1, in 11 innings after going down 9-6 in nine.

Opposing batsmen couldn't solve the Riddle from Cincinnati and unbeaten Elmer posted his tenth straight win by blanking the Boston Braves with five hits for a 4-0 Red victory. Manny Salvo and Tom Earley combined on a nine-hitter to beat Paul Derringer, 6-5 in the second game.

Even old Jack Knott, who sits down to table with the Philadelphia Athletics these days, was in the parade. Turning in his fourth win in the past five starts, he downed the Detroit Tigers, 5-4, with five hits, despite two homers by Pinky Higgins.

Washington walloped St. Louis, 6-3 and 6-5, as a quartet of Nat pitchers allowed only 13 hits through the 18 innings.

VIC GHEZZI IS P. G. A. WINNER; BEATS NELSON

BY LOUDON KELLY

Denver, July 14—(AP)—It was only a 30-inch putt and it wobbled into the cup like any duffer's effort, but to 6 foot 3 inch Vic Ghezzi it was worth $500 and his first Professional Golfers' Association title.

The handsome Deal, N. J., veteran won the championship and the $1,100 top prize after nine years' trying in a 38-hole epic with defending champion Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, at Cherry Hills yesterday.

And the missed shot that cost the Texas-bred Nelson the last chance at his second straight crown and the difference between first money and $600 he won was a putt of the same 2½-foot length.

This was the picture of the second extra-hole of the playoff.

Both players, worn from physical and nervous strain, failed to reach the carpet of the 400-yard hole with their seconds. First Ghezzi chipped on, then Nelson, both expertly close.

They flipped a coin for first putt and Nelson won. He putted first and went by at the right. Then Ghezzi went in by the right side.

Ghezzi never before had won a championship of this importance. He showed the fighting heart of a true champion in coming from behind. Nelson was three up at the 27-hole station and it looked as though nothing would stop him.

Ghezzi equalled par for the 38 holes. Nelson was one over par.

BUSINESS BOOMS

Pittsburgh, July 14—(AP)—Rising from early month doldrums, business in the Pittsburgh district soared to new peaks during June, the University of Pittsburgh reported. The bureau's monthly index rose to 145.5 per cent of the 1923-25 average, slightly exceeding the best previous month, December, 1940. The bureau said seasonal adjustments arising from the summer lull will tend to check the rise in the index from now until late in the year.

Knox Finishes First Year As Navy Secretary

(From Page One)

United States of America could long survive in a Nazi-dominated world."

Just a year ago the senate after sharp debate confirmed the nominations of Frank Knox to be navy secretary and Henry L. Stimson to be secretary of war. Knox, the bluff, ruddy 1936 Republican nominee for vice president, met with stronger opposition than Stimson, who had been President Hoover's secretary of state and President Taft's secretary of war.

Chicago, July 14—(AP)—A resolution adopted by 118 representatives of ten America First committee chapters urged that Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox be removed from office because of his recommendation that the navy be used to "clear the Atlantic of the German menace."

This, the resolution said, was in disregard of constitutional provisions that congress has the sole power to declare war.

"there will be more purchasing power running around hunting something to buy than there are goods available. If that occurs to substantial degree, no power on earth can prevent inflation.

"For that reason the government must sop up some of this extra purchasing power, and it can do so in many healthy ways. It must increase taxes, thus helping to pay for defense. It can stimulate savings—thus providing a back-log for the future when first attention is not being given to merchandise of death. Consumer credit must be kept from expanding."

DEDICATION OF I. O. O. F. SHRINE ATTRACTS MANY

Between forty and fifty Warren Odd Fellows, Rebekahs and their families were in Meadville Saturday to attend the dedication of a memorial shrine at the I. O. O. F. Orphans' Home, which attracted a crowd estimated at between 8,000 and 10,000 people.

The address of the afternoon was given by Grand Sire James O. Hagerman, while State Senator Jacob W. Carr, of Butler, representing Governor James, delivered the dedicatory address.

The program also included selections by the chorus of the home music by the home band and other features. In the evening there was a public initiatory ceremonial and a drill by a Rebekah drill team.

Training Period Discussed

is a modified form of requisition legislation originally sought by the War Department, it was expected to kick up considerable controversy on the senate floor and Senator McNary of Oregon, the Republican leader, said Republicans generally would oppose it.

Under it the government would be empowered to requisition private property needed specifically for defense purposes.

The fight over property requisitioning appeared likely to develop as a Senate prelude to the two-part issue now confronting Congress over the use and duration of service of the 900,000 National Guardsmen and selective service trainees in the army.

Reynolds said he would ask the military committee to begin hearings Wednesday on legislation advocated by General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, to permit holding the men in service beyond the one year for which they were called and to remove restrictions preventing their use outside the western hemisphere or American possessions.

General Marshall recently advised congressional leaders, it was learned, that unless selectees are held in the army more than a year, outlying defense bases cannot be adequately manned. Citing Hawaii, he was quoted as having said large number of troops would have to be brought back from there in August because of the approaching expiration of their year's service.

Such transfers of men and the dispatch of troops to replace them, he declared, would require the maintenance of a sort of shuttle service between the continental United States and offshore bases.

Opponents of the bill were as outspoken as its advocates, however, and McNary said it would encounter strong minority opposition. He predicted that if it finally passed the provision to permit sending the men outside the western hemisphere would first be eliminated.

Talk of compromise centered chiefly upon the point of service duration and included some discussion of incentives such as special pay by which selectees would be encouraged to remain in uniform for an additional year or two without being required by law to do so.

Expelled Nazi Officials Miss Japanese Boat

Japanese embassy in Tokyo and the NYK line's main office there, and the Yawata was flashed to a halt some 90 miles at sea, awaiting developments.

Wiedemann then sought transportation to the Yawata. Without success he attempted to hire a seaplane or boat. He asked the coast guard for a cutter, and the navy for a destroyer. But he was told that neither branch could give him an answer until it was decided whether the Yawata would turn about.

Then, near midnight, the German embassy in Washington informed the consulate here that the Yawata Maru "is too far out and no possibility of her turning back."

The Germans decided to sail July 31 aboard the Japanese liner Tatuta Maru.

Germany's Claims Of Successes Disputed In Moscow Reports

in some places repelled with severe losses in the vicinity of Pskov, 150 miles southwest of Leningrad.

The Germans reported Vitebsk captured and a gap torn in the central Stalin defense line through which panzer divisions were said to be pushing toward Moscow, less than 300 miles away.

The Russians acknowledged German forces had crossed the Dnepr river on the central front, but said the Red army recaptured Rogachev, on the eastern bank, and Zhlobin, on the western bank, 35 miles southeast of Bobruisk.

The Kiev front the Moscow war bulletin said only: "In the southwestern direction our troops continued operations against enemy motorized and mechanized units, resisting their advance eastward."

The Russians declared that the Red air fleet still was fighting a free-for-all war with the luftwaffe, and that Germany was hard hit, by the loss of 2,300 planes, 1,000,000 men killed, wounded or captured, and 3,000 tanks destroyed. Russian losses of a quarter-million men in casualties and missing, 1,900 planes and 2,200 tanks were acknowledged.

Both Moscow and London acclaimed the new Soviet-British pact against Germany. It provided that each country should give the other assistance in the war against the Reich and that neither should negotiate or sign a separate peace.

Britain regarded her entire position in the Middle East as strengthened by the armistice signed Saturday night with Gen. Henri Dentz, French high commissioner and commander of the French armies in Syria and Lebanon.

French sources at Vichy, which refused to have anything to do with armistice negotiations and left Gen. Dentz on his own, said they understood he only initialed the terms and intimated Vichy still might not recognize provisions of the agreement.

British bombers smashed again overnight at northwestern Germany in raids far across new trenches and defense works the British said the Germans had built along the French coast facing England despite steady poundings by the RAF. Scattered German raids were reported from East Anglia and the Midlands.

In the Far East, a fresh "war of nerves" appeared to be cropping up.

Dispatches from Shanghai said Japan had closed the port of Kobe to foreigners for a 10-day period amid what seemed to be a Japanese propaganda campaign to create the impression that a Japanese attack against Russian Siberia was imminent.

Kobe, it was pointed out, might be used as a point of embarkation against Siberia, although most of the shipping out of Kobe goes to China or farther south.

Reports spread by Japanese military and naval quarters in Shanghai said the attack would be launched the day Moscow falls, or perhaps on Aug. 15.

If European Russia collapses under German invasion blows, these reports said, Japan might risk tackling the powerful Red armies in Siberia, estimated at 39 divisions or approximately 585,000 troops.

Foreign military observers in Shanghai, however, still held to the belief that Japan's next move would be southward into French Indo-China, now the target of a Japanese press tirade.

grisly gang who did Hitler's worst" and forecast that Italy, too, would get her share of the RAF's attention.

Disputes Involve Millions

on a committee investigating the subject for months, boiled down to this:

The federal government, said Heyburn, demands that the state amend its law to allow recovery from the general fund of any monies "improperly spent" in the past. If this amendment falls, the senator said, the state will be "out of conformity" and the federal government takes over "complete" control of the state unemployment compensation division.

The reapportionment situation changed somewhat after what Senator George Wade (R-Cumberland) called a "complete deadlock" in the dawn hours. Democratic members offered several counter proposals which indicated a willingness, members of the conference committee said, to arrive at a compromise.

Until now, Democrats had insisted on combining Berks and Lehigh in one district, Bucks and Montgomery in another, to reduce the state's districts from 34 to 33 as required by the results of the 1940 census.

Another dispute arose on civil service which was handled by the same conference committee that took up the compensation subject. The House insisted on inserting in the bill, which would combine all merit rating plans under one commission, a provision denying the governor the right to fire "for the good of the service."

The Senate demanded the executive have this authority. After the report was agreed upon by the committee giving the governor that right, House leaders said they would seek to override the committee recommendation, but nothing was done immediately.

Otherwise, the assembly reached a general accord on the few subjects of controversy remaining from this session which is past century in this state.

R. A. F. Bombers Score Hits On Enemy Vessels

(From Page One)

Nazi daylight raiders also struck across the channel. Three soldiers were reported wounded when a German plane machinegunned a train in southern England early this morning.

First reports of the daylight sweep said two German planes were shot down as the RAF roared eastward.

In the nigth raids, docks at Amsterdam and Ostend were reported raided and targets as distant as Bremen and Vegesack hit.

Weather again was reported unfavorable to night raiding, but the British said they scored hits which started fires among the oil storage tanks of Rotterdam.

The shipping and shipbuilding center of Bremen and Vegesack were among the RAF's targets in Germany, a communique reported.

One British plane was reported missing in night sweeps over German-occupied northern France.

The government acknowledged the Nazi raiders had bombed a town in the Midlands, another in East Angelia and various places along the coast, but said damage was comparatively light and casualties few. Two of the raiders were reported downed.

FLOOR LEADER GELTZ COLLAPSES AT CAUCUS

Harrisburg, July 14.—(AP)—The Senate's majority floor-leader, James A. Geltz (R-Allegheny) collapsed from exhaustion and nervousness during a party caucus session this morning but fellow senators said he hoped to be on hand when the Senate resumes its meeting at 2 p. m. (EST).

Sen. Leroy E. Chapman (R-Warren) said Geltz's condition was not serious and that he had been taken to his hotel room and advised to remain in bed today for a rest. He had been working for the last week practically without sleep, as the legislature hastened toward final adjournment.

Jefferson, O., July 14—(AP)—Two farmboy brothers, Clifford Gochneaur, Jr., 13 and Cecil Gochneaur, 15, drowned Sunday in Pymatuning lake at Simonds, O., near the Pennsylvania border. They had been playing near an old bridge in area inundated to form the lake.

REAPPORTIONING BILL TO AFFECT WARREN COUNTY

In a conference lasting well past dawn, Democrats in the state legislature today submitted two counter-proposals to Republican suggestions for reducing the state's congressional representation from 34 to 33, one of them affecting Warren county, according to an Associated Press dispatch from Harrisburg. This legislation is one of the major items delaying adjournment of the 1941 General Assembly.

The Democrats' proposal—first made by them since the conference committee was formed several weeks ago—would do this:

1. Place Dauphin in the so-called "shoe-string" district now comprising Huntingdon, Mifflin, Juniata, Snyder, Perry, Union, Bedford and Fulton; place Lebanon with Lancaster and Chester, and Cumberland with Adams, York and Franklin. (Dauphin, Lebanon and Cumberland represented by a Republican now comprise the 19th district.)

2. Combine the 20th and 29th districts, both represented by Republicans, which would place Erie, Crawford, Mercer, Venango, Forest, Clarion, Elk and Warren in one district.

Republicans, meanwhile, submitted their eighth proposal—to place Lackawanna in the so-called "horseshoe" district of Bradford, Wayne, Montour, Wyoming, Susquehanna, Pike, Sullivan and Columbia counties. Lackawanna is now Democratic, the "horseshoe" Republican.

Failure to re-apportion the state would mean the election of all representatives on a state-wide basis.

"If we fail on this bill, we have betrayed our state and our constituents," Senator LeRoy Chapman, of Warren, told the Senate at midnight, shortly before the committee began its all-night session.

"I am utterly opposed to allowing this legislation to go by the board and I will not cast a vote for adjournment sine die until some action is secured if we have to stay here all summer," he added.

Chapman was one of several senators who joined in protest against dropping legislation to cut the state's congressional representation from 34 to 33 as required by the 1940 census.

His statement followed an announcement by Senator George Wade, of Cumberland county, that Senate Republicans had virtually given up hope that a redistricting bill could be passed.

FIRST OBJECTOR GROUP ARRIVES IN NEAR FUTURE

The new $35,000 camp for conscientious objectors to war in the Allegheny National Forest at Red Bridge, nine miles north of Kane, is reported ready for the first contingent of 20 men, expected to arrive this week from a similar camp near Lagro, Ind.

Camp officials said the first campers would be Pennsylvanians now enrolled at the Indiana camp. A group of 100 more is expected July 26.

Regulations at the camp will conform to those followed in other states, it was pointed out. The Red Bridge camp is the first to be established in Pennsylvania.

Campers will be restricted to the grounds for the first six weeks with visiting permitted on Sunday afternoon. After the orientation period, a pass arrangement will be effective during the men's free time.

Enrollees will work a 44-hour week without pay under the U. S. Forest Service on projects left unfinished when the former veterans' CCC camp was abandoned. Projects include a $50,000 improvement to Kennedy Park on route 219 near Bradford, tree planting, road construction and maintenance jobs.

The camp consists of five barracks, each with facilities for housing 40 men, a mess hall with a capacity of 200, recreation building, a garage which can be converted into a theatre and administration and utility buildings.

Officials said half of the men will be members of the Church of the Brethren, which is co-sponsor of the camp with the federal government. Other camps will represent the Friends and the Mennonite churches.

Affiliated churches will pay $35 a month toward the keep of each man. In the case of the campers not affiliated with a church, the three named will contribute a third each to the man's expenses.
